LIGNITE RATE BOOST IS HELD NOT JUSTIFIED

BOTH I.C.C. AND STATE BODIES DECIDE MATTER

Interstate Commerce Submits Scale and Asks Further Consideration

AFTER A HARD FIGHT

Lignite Operators, Joined By Others, Say Boost Would Have Killed Industry

Washington, June 16.—(By the A. P.)—Proposed increased rates on lignite coal from mines in North Dakota to destinations in North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota, were found not justified today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. New schedules which had previously been suspended were ordered cancelled.

The commission held that present rates are too low but that the record is insufficient to determine specific proper rates for the future. It submitted a scale of rates proposed by the examiner who conducted hearings in the case, for the purpose of securing the views of all interests concerned, as to its fairness.

The lignite interests of the state won the first round in their fight against proposed increases in freight rates, but the Interstate Commerce Commission retains a string on the case and there will be further proceedings, Frank Milhollan, president of the North Dakota railroad commission, said today, commenting on the decision of the Washington body in the coal rate case.

The North Dakota state commission, in its decision today with regard to the proposed increases in intra-state traffic, however, dismissed the proceeding entirely.

In finding the proposed increases of 40 to 60 per cent were not justified, the Interstate Commerce Commission said that the proposed scale drawn by Examiner W. H. Wagner who presided at the hearing, and virtually gave the parties one of two courses to pursue—to accept this scale or decide on another scale, and submit their findings to the Interstate Commerce Commission, Milhollan said.

The rates proposed by Mr. Wagner, he said, are 95 percent of the increased rates asked by the railroads on short hauls, decreasing on longer hauls until only half of 200 miles the scale is about 38 to 40 per cent higher than present rates.

CASE DISMISSED

The proposed schedule of lignite coal rates, increasing them 40 to 60 percent on coal shipped from North Dakota mines, as filed by the railroads and suspended, were held unjustified by the North Dakota state railroad commission, in a decision handed down in the case today, and the proceeding instituted by the railroads to gain official sanction for the increase in rates was dismissed without prejudice.

The state commission's decision is applicable to shipments of coal moving wholly within the state, while the Interstate Commerce Commission will decide the case affecting shipments of coal from North Dakota lines to points beyond the borders of North Dakota. About 88 percent of the lignite coal moves wholly within North Dakota.

The state commission, in finding the proposed increases in rates not justified, however, finds that the present rates are too low as compared to rates held confiscatory by the United States Supreme Court in 1911, but holds that this decision and comparison alone is not controlling.

Fail to Justify

"Having carefully considered all of the testimony in this case, the arguments adduced and the representations made," says the railroad commission, "the Commission is of the opinion, and finds, that because of the low besting value of lignite, which is shown to be but half that of bituminous coal, it is entitled to a different classification and a lower basis of rates than bituminous coal; that the proposed freight rates would limit the movement of lignite to points adjacent to the mines; that the carriers have failed to justify the schedule under consideration.

"We further find that compared to the rates found confiscatory by the United States Supreme Court in 1911, when subjected to the various general increases and reductions, the present lignite rates are too low, but that the record is insufficient to justify us in prescribing other rates. An order will be entered, requiring the cancellation of the (Continued on page 5)

Hold Up Auto and Dash Up Broadway—Two Men Arrested, Charged with Murder

New York, June 16. (By the A. P.)—The police are continuing their efforts to determine the motives which caused two men to shoot to death Bill Brennan, heavyweight pugilist, in his Washington Heights apartment, the Tia Juana club, early yesterday. James Cullen, a state sealer, and friend of Brennan, died early today from wounds he received in fighting the bandits after they had shot his prize ring friend.

The two men charged with the murder are Frank Raffi and James Hughes. Both, according to the police, have criminal records. Raffi is a taxi chauffeur and Hughes is a pugilist, known in the ring as Terry O'Neill.

Raffi, the police say, has engaged in bootlegging and as a search of his cabaret reveals a barrel filled with empty whiskey bottles, it is believed by authorities that a quarrel over bootlegging operations may have resulted in the murder. No attempt was made at robbery.

Cabaret Deserted

The killing occurred at 4.30 o'clock yesterday morning when the cabaret was deserted, save for the waiters. Brennan, his sister Shirley Sherman, who was employed there as an entertainer and Cullen. One of the men who Miss Sherman identified later as Hughes entered and asked for Brennan to step into the hall for a moment.

Brennan complied and almost immediately two shots were fired. Miss Sherman and Cullen rushed into the hallway, on the second floor and found Brennan lying on the floor. The girl snatched at the coat of one of the men and as he broke away he fired twice. One of the shots lodged in Cullen's neck and the other narrowly missed Miss Sherman. Brennan died while being carried to an ambulance.

Smash Down Door

The assassins gained their way to Broadway by smashing a glass door at the bottom of the stairway and, after knocking senseless a passing police lieutenant, held up an automobile, forcing the driver to dash up Broadway at top speed. They were captured by two policemen who pursued them in a commandeered taxi. Detectives learned that Brennan ejected two men from the room some hours before the shooting. They think these two might have returned later and sought revenge, although they attach more importance to the bootlegging whiskey theory.

William Brennan, 31 years old, formerly of Chicago, had lived in New York during the past year. He was noted as a "trial horse" for coming heavyweights. He retired from the ring last fall with a reputed fortune after being knocked out by the late Billy Miske. Brennan's greatest claim to fame rested in his having stayed 12 rounds with Jack Dempsey.

McADOO IS COMING

New York, June 16. (By the A. P.)—Democratic leaders from all parts of the country are here or on the way, ready for the week of political maneuvering which will precede the national convention. Cordell Hull of Tennessee, chairman of the Democratic national committee; Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut; Bruce Kremer of Montana; Norman E. Mack of Buffalo; George White of Ohio and Bert New of Indiana, are among the leaders already here, while William Jennings Bryan is expected to arrive later in the day. By Wednesday, other leading figures in the Democratic ranks will be here, including William G. McAdoo, Governor Smith came from Albany last week to stay until after the convention.

Most of the "dark horses" or the leaders of their hopes are expected in the city by mid-week. Looming in the forefront of these today are the names of John W. Davis, former ambassador to Great Britain, and Senator Ralston of Indiana.

Sentiment favoring the choice of Mr. Davis as the Democratic standard bearer in the event of a deadlock convention was reported to be growing swiftly.

Charles A. Grantham, secretary of the Democratic national committee, and Meredith Nicholson, novelist, are here in the interest of Senator Ralston's boom, which is considered one of the quietest nomination quests in the history of Democratic conventions.

10 NOW HELD IN ROUNDUP OF MAIL ROBBERS

Chicago Chief Admits Robbery Is Largest Ever Perpetrated in Country

$3,000,000 WAS TAKEN

Police Hope to Recover All of The Loot Taken From Milwaukee Train

Chicago, June 16.—Three women and seven men are held as part of the gang which on Thursday night perpetrated a $3,000,000 mail robbery at Roundout, Illinois, near here, and officers are seeking three additional men and the bandit cache, where they believed the approximately 40 bags of registered mail will be found intact.

Morgan Collins, chief of police, admitted last night that an accurate check on the contents of the stolen mail sacks revealed a loss in excess of $3,000,000, all in currency or negotiable securities, making it the largest robbery in the history of the railway mail service.

The chief pointed out that some of the pouches taken had been shipped originally from Wall street banks to the Northwest and in that connection it became known the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train had left Chicago 15 minutes late on Thursday night, having been held for an important money shipment from the east.

The police believe one or more of the seven men under arrest actually participated in the holdup. J. H. Wayne, seriously wounded, and James Murray, former politician, were arrested hiding under Wayne's bed. The police say they are working on the theory that Wayne was shot by the bandit leader when he failed to carry out orders during the holdup and that Murray had aided him in an effort to keep him from turning informer.

Chicago detectives indicated they thought they had information which would guide them today to where the loot was buried. They indicated the loot was near the scene of the robbery.

SLEMP DENIES HE WILL QUIT AS SECRETARY

President Said to Have Brought Warring Republican Factions Together

Washington, June 16.—Clyde Slemple, Secretary to President Coolidge, announced today in a formal statement before leaving for Cincinnati, that he had not resigned his present position and would continue actively associated in the Republican national campaign.

The formal statement was issued because of persistent reports of the likelihood of Mr. Slemple's retirement owing to the open disagreement between him and William M. Butler, the Coolidge campaign manager, during the convention, last week at Cleveland.

The disagreement between Mr. Slemple and Butler on the one hand and Mr. Slemple and Mr. Stearns, and their supporters on the other, was generally noticeable after the adjournment of the convention, but President Coolidge, after hearing both sides, was able to bring about a reconciliation of views.

HEAVY HAIL LOSS CAUSED IN GRANT CO.

Reported Hail Drifted to Depth of Four Feet in Some Places There

Mandan, N. D., June 16.—Hail which fell and drifted to a depth of four feet in places last Saturday around Lark and the county south of that point in Grant county, according to belated reports and descriptions given today by persons from that district, who declared the storm transformed green fields into a semblance of mid winter.

Farmers are dubious about the grain coming up again, as the plant life was pounded into the ground by the terrific force of the wind. Barns on the Sam Knoll and William Noyes farms were destroyed and meager reports from a district extending from Hebron to Belvidere southeast of Lark and Raleigh tell of small buildings being destroyed and in some spots areas a complete loss of crops.

$375,000 LEVY FOR PRINCIPAL ON BONDS SEEN

Taxpayers May Begin Next Year to Feel Additional Pull Because of Issues

WHAT THE LAW PROVIDES

If Industries Fail to Yield Profits, Taxpayers Must Pay For the Bonds

The State of North Dakota, which had almost wiped out its bonded indebtedness until it began to issue bonds for state enterprises, will be called upon to pay the principal of $5,710,000 of bonds within the next 10 years, an examination of the state bond records discloses.

Under the law, if the industries fail to yield sufficient money to pay the principal of the bonds, the amount must be made up by taxation. It is probable that the first levies which will have to be made on taxpayers to build up a fund to provide for repayment of bonds issued will come next fall when the state board of equalization meets. It is likely, from present conditions, that a levy of $375,000 will be used for this purpose.

In addition levies are made annually by the state board to take care of interest on bonds issued by failure of industries to yield profits.

Bond issues maturing in the next 10 years follow:

Old State bonds, July 1, 1925.	$ 50,000
Milling bonds, July 1, 1928.	250,000
Milling bonds, July 1, 1929.	250,000
Bank of North Dakota, July 1, 1929.	1,000,000
Real Estate, July 1, 1931.	210,000
Milling bonds, July 1, 1932.	250,000
Milling bonds, July 1, 1934.	250,000
Bank of North Dakota, July 1, 1934.	1,000,000
Real Estate bonds, Jan. 1, 1935.	300,000
Real Estate bonds, Jan. 1, 1934.	1,500,000

Thus far North Dakota taxpayers have felt the bond issues only through levies to pay interest. It appears that the state board of equalization next fall will be required to make levies for principal payments. Laws regarding bond maturities all contain the same section as follows: "Whenever it shall appear to the board of equalization from the information contained in any statement delivered to it by the Industrial Commission that there will mature within a period of five years from such annual meeting any of the bonds provided for in this act the board of equalization shall thereupon at amount equal to one-fifth of the amount of the principal of such bonds."

Since $1,500,000 of mill bonds and Bank of North Dakota capital stock bonds come due in 1928 and 1929, and it requires a year to bring a tax levy into the treasury, it is expected that the state board of equalization will be required to levy one-fourth of this total next fall, or $375,000 in taxes to build up the fund to pay the principal of the bonds when due. Since neither the bank nor the state mill is expected to show any appreciable profit, if their present losses should be wiped out, under the law it is believed the board will have no option but to add $375,000 a year to the taxpayer's load.

Unusually heavy rain accompanied the storm. In the neighborhood of Mound and Chamberlain, two inches of rain fell in 10 minutes. Huron reported 2.20 inches of rain in 30 minutes.

HIT ALL SECTIONS

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 16. (By the A. P.)—A storm that swept the entire state of South Dakota, assuming tornado proportions in a score of localities, took a toll of at least four lives, caused property damage too great to be estimated with accuracy, and communication is restored and did great injury to growing crops Saturday afternoon and evening.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE

Westington Springs, S. D., June 16. (By Courier and Telegraph by the A. P.)—Extensive property damage was done in Westington Springs and over the country-side for a radius of 20 miles from here, by a tornado that struck this city at 7 p. m. Saturday. Estimates of damage ranged from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

While no fatalities have been reported, many families were made homeless as the tornado unroofed many homes and business buildings and the subsequent torrential rain added to the damage and suffering. Many business stocks were ruined.

Every means of communication with the outside world was destroyed by the storm, and this message is sent by courier for 20 miles to the nearest available point of communication with the outside sources. It was written late Sunday.

Saturday night and Sunday night the city was in darkness, so far as electric lights were concerned for not only were the light poles splintered or snapped off but the new electric light plant suffered extensive damage.

SEEK HUSBAND OF WOMAN AS BODY IS FOUND

Mrs. Gene Rae Cummings' Body Found in Shallow Grave in Wisconsin

Milwaukee, Wis., June 16.—Authorities in half a dozen counties in north central Wisconsin are watching the roads leading to Wittenberg, where the nude body of Mrs. Gene Rae Cummings, Grand Rapids, Michigan, was found yesterday in a shallow grave, with indications that she had been murdered, today were without trace of the slayer.

The farmer, whose suspicions were aroused, made an investigation and discovered the body.

The woman is thought to have been slain Saturday night while the couple was at the Wittenberg tourist camp for the night. Her skull had been crushed.

Authorities from Shawano, who took charge of the body, believed the implement used was an axe.

The slain woman, past 60 years of age, is believed to have married Cummings, nearly 80 years her junior, only a week ago at Grand Rapids. They were reported by relatives to have been en route to Vancouver, Wash.

10 NOW HELD IN ROUNDUP OF MAIL ROBBERS

Chicago Chief Admits Robbery Is Largest Ever Perpetrated in Country

$3,000,000 WAS TAKEN

Police Hope to Recover All of The Loot Taken From Milwaukee Train

Chicago, June 16.—Three women and seven men are held as part of the gang which on Thursday night perpetrated a $3,000,000 mail robbery at Roundout, Illinois, near here, and officers are seeking three additional men and the bandit cache, where they believed the approximately 40 bags of registered mail will be found intact.

Morgan Collins, chief of police, admitted last night that an accurate check on the contents of the stolen mail sacks revealed a loss in excess of $3,000,000, all in currency or negotiable securities, making it the largest robbery in the history of the railway mail service.

The chief pointed out that some of the pouches taken had been shipped originally from Wall street banks to the Northwest and in this connection it became known the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train had left Chicago 15 minutes late on Thursday night, having been held for an important money shipment from the east.

The police believe one or more of the seven men under arrest actually participated in the holdup. J. H. Wayne, seriously wounded, and James Murray, former politician, were arrested hiding under Wayne's bed. The police say they are working on the theory that Wayne was shot by the bandit leader when he failed to carry out orders during the holdup and that Murray had aided him in an effort to keep him from turning informer.

Chicago detectives indicated they thought they had information which would guide them today to where the loot was buried. They indicated the loot was near the scene of the robbery.

SLEMP DENIES HE WILL QUIT AS SECRETARY

President Said to Have Brought Warring Republican Factions Together

Washington, June 16.—C. G. Bascom Slemp, Secretary to President Coolidge, announced today in a formal statement before leaving for Cincinnati, that he had not resigned his present position and would continue actively associated in the republican national campaign.

The formal statement was issued because of persistent reports of the likelihood of Mr. Slemp's retirement owing to the open disagreement between him and William M. Butler, the Coolidge campaign manager, during the convention last week at Cleveland.

The disagreement between Mr. Slemp and others on the one hand and Mr. Butler, Frank W. Stearns and their supporters on the other, was generally noticeable at the adjournment of the convention, but President Coolidge, after hearing both sides, was able to bring about a reconciliation of views.

HEAVY HAIL LOSS CAUSED IN GRANT CO.

Reported Hail Drifted to Depth of Four Feet in Some Places There

Mandan, N. D., June 16.—Hail which fell and drifted to a depth of four feet in places last Saturday around Lark and the country south of that point in Grant county, according to belated reports and descriptions given today by persons from that district, who declared the storm transformed green fields into a semblance of mid winter.

Farmers are dubious about the grain coming up again, as the plant life was pounded into the ground by the terrific force of the wind. Barns on the Sam Knoll and William Noyes farms were destroyed and meager reports from a district extending from Hebron to Belfield south-easterly through Lark and Raleigh tell of small buildings being destroyed and in some spotted areas a complete loss of crops.

FARMER SHOT, PERHAPS FATALLY WOUNDED, BY ANOTHER ANGERED BY FISHING IN LONG LAKE CREEK

Joseph Mills in Hospital Here Suffering From Gunshot Wounds Alleged to Have Been Caused By George Corbin, Aged Farmer, Living Near Livona, Short Distance From Burleigh County Line, in Emmons County

Angered apparently because a party of farmers was fishing on a creek running through his land, George Corbin, said to be about 75 years old, shot and probably fatally wounded Joseph Mills, 29, on Long Lake Creek, near Livona, about 35 miles southeast of Bismarck Sunday according to local police.

Mills, with the left-side of his jaw almost torn off by the charge of Corbin's shotgun and a gun was behind his shoulder blade, toppled over in the boat he was in, but recovered paddled to shore and walked a half mile to an automobile, according to members of his family. After Corbin shot the three other members of the fishing party hid in bushes, fearing that Corbin would open fire on them, friends said.

The victim has a wife and three children the eldest eight and the youngest two months of age.

Joe Mills, with Hubert Baker, Charles Cowles and Harold Irvin, were fishing a short distance from the place of the shooting, according to Henry Mills, and when Corbin shouted at them Joe Mills said "I'll float down and talk to the old man." He floated opposite Corbin and a moment later the shotgun discharge was heard.

The victim was conscious part of the time when being brought to a Bismarck hospital.

"Joe told me that Corbin shot him without any argument and was going to shoot him again when Joe said, 'Don't shoot me again. I'm dying,'" said Henry Mills, a brother.

Many Accompany Him

All of the members of the fishing party and Corbin's farmers living near Glencoe. The creek runs through land of all of them. The party had gone out on the creek and it was about 9 o'clock Sunday morning when the shooting occurred, they said. A large party of relatives and friends accompanied the wounded man to Bismarck. They include Ernest Burbage and Wesley Chandler, who brought him up; Mrs. Mills and children, Henry Mills, a brother; C. C. Mills, father; "Heinie" Cook, August Hogue, Stella Klein and Mrs. Henry Mills.

The wounded man had been given medical attention by a Hazelton doctor, who, after dressing his wounds, ordered him brought to the Bismarck hospital. A short time ago Joe Mills brought Ernest Burbage to a hospital here, after the latter had been run over by a tractor and badly injured, and then with great pluck climbed on that tractor and drove it back to the farm house. Ernest Burbage, in turn, was one of those bringing his friend to a hospital here yesterday. The same kind of pluck was exhibited by Joe Mills, in walking a half mile to an automobile while terribly injured.

Doctors held out little hope for Mills last night, but he was resting well today.

A complaint was sworn out before Justice Beer, but it was found the affair took place in Emmons county. Chief of Police Munnison was assisting Emmons county officials.

SEEK HUSBAND OF WOMAN AS BODY IS FOUND

Milwaukee, Wis., June 16.—Authorities in half a dozen counties in north central Wisconsin are watching the roads leading to Wittenberg, where the nude body of Mrs. Gene Rae Cummings, Grand Rapids, Michigan, was found yesterday in a shallow grave, with indications that she had been murdered, today were without trace of the slayer.

George P. Cummings, husband of the woman, who claimed they were but recently married, has disappeared and no trace of him has been seen since a farmer in the neighborhood of Wittenberg assisted in extracting the Cummings car from a ditch. The farmer, whose suspicions were aroused, made an investigation and discovered the body.

The woman is thought to have been slain Saturday night while the couple was at the Wittenberg tourist camp for the night. Her skull had been crushed.

Authorities from Shawano, who took charge of the body, believed the implement used was an axe.

The slain woman, past 60 years of age, is believed to have married Cummings, nearly 30 years her junior, only a week ago at Grand Rapids. They were reported by relatives to have been en route to Vancouver, Wash.

The United States adopted standard time in 1883 on the initiative of the American Railway Association.

LOCAL SCOUTS RETURN FROM CANADA CAMP

There was a lot of wet, cold weather, both J. M. MacLeod and Fred Hanson, in charge of the camp, said the boys enjoyed real campers and enjoyed themselves all the time. They got use of row boats Monday. Scout games and stunts occupied much of their time. The fishing wasn't so good.

Carlyle Lake, the boys said, was beautifully situated up in the wooded hills of the White Bear Indian Reservation.

The boys were divided into five troops in camp, under the leadership of Russell LeBarron, John Brown, "Boots" Dreibach, Harry Loebach and Walt LeRoy. Scout Master Hanson, Mechanic Herman Sor-tomme and Mr. MacLeod constituted a camp executive committee.

Each troop was placed on duty for a day being made responsible for the day's "grub" and general camp care. The daily program generally was as follows: 6:30 a. m. Reveille, blankets out, weather permitting; setting up exercises; flag raising. After breakfast tents were set in order, family prayers and camp council held. Scout craft and Scout games continued until after dinner after which tent inspection was held. Scout, craft, hikes and games took up the rest of the afternoon. Supper was at 6 p. m. after which there was a camp council and the daily paper in which the inter-troup contests were reported.

The weather was too cold for much swimming. An incident of the camp was when an old Indian rode into camp and laughed when each patrol leader was given one match and sent into the wet woods and rain to boil water. The boys got the old Indian to light a fire in his fashion and it didn't take him long.

Last year about 300,000 autos entered the national parks.

Election of Bishop and Council Is Held as a Part of the Convocation

The session of the fortieth convocation of the St. Georges Church continued today with celebration of the Holy Communion at 7:30 a. m. Following the communion, the women's auxiliary gave its offering for the memorial to Bishop Tuttle, who died last year at his home in New York. The memorial to be erected is a rest-home in New York for returned missionaries. Bishop Tuttle is considered to have been one of the greatest bishops in the Episcopal missions and church extension, religious education, social service, publicity, finance, and field service, in which he was for fifty years.

Reports of the five departments were heard this morning, and accepted, following which lunch was served at the Country Club, and talks given on Indian work by Miss Elizabeth Bowen, Mrs. William Cross, Mrs. Martin Seewalker, and William Cross.

The election this morning of the bishop and council, resulted as follows, all the members being re-elected: Rt. Rev. J. Poyntz Tyler, D. D., President, Fargo; Mr. D. B. Holt, Chancellor, Fargo; Mr. C. D. Lord, Treasurer, Park River; Rev. N. E. Elsworth, Jamestown; Very Rev. H. Cowley-Carroll, Fargo; Rev. Charles Leo Abbott, Larimore; Rev. Chas. W. Those chapters which were unable to send delegates, sent exhibits of work done. The membership of the society in North Dakota is 1,200, which is considered a very creditable number, as the society organized its first branches within the last two years, according to Miss May Case Marsh, national extension secretary, who makes her headquarters in New York.

Officers chosen for the society are: Honorary president, Mrs. J. P. Tyler, Fargo; President, Mrs. C. C. Cowman, Grand Forks; Vice-president, Mrs. F. E. Featherstone, Valley City, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Homer Harrington, Fargo.

FIFTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HERE CONCLUDED WITH SPECIAL SUNDAY SERVICES

The Present church, the foundation of which was laid in 1884, the structure being completed in 1892. The chapel was added in 1907.

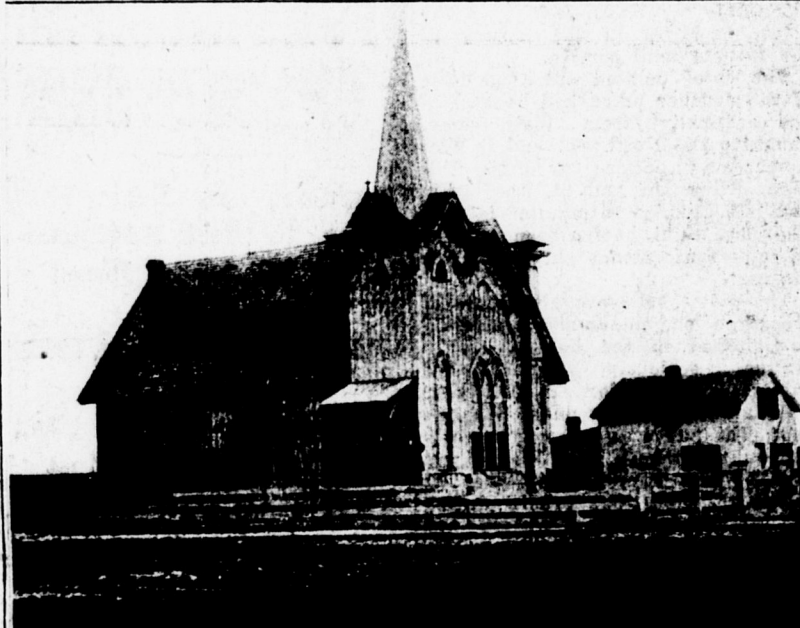

Interesting Facts of Early Day Struggle to Build Up The Church Are Revealed—Many Prominent in Early Life of Church Participated in Work of Raising Funds For It.

The fifty-first anniversary celebration of the First Presbyterian church concluded with Anniversary Sunday observance yesterday. Special programs were given, both morning and evening, with Dr. W. E. Roe of Jamestown College delivering the anniversary sermon.

The first Presbyterian church in what is now North Dakota was organized June 15, 1873, and it was the first Presbyterian church in the territory.

In connection with the anniversary J. L. Bell has presented some historical facts of interest, illustrating the early day struggles to found and continue the church.

The original committee for the solicitation of funds, he found on examination of records, was composed of Rev. C. E. Austin, pastor; O. F. Davis, who was a well known real estate man, and George P. Flannery, now of St. Paul, who was active in the work of the church during his residence here. The architect was W. L. Dow, who was also architect of the territorial prison (the main part of the present prison), and also the C. W. Thompson home, now Bishop Wehrle's residence. The construction work was done by the Weaver Lumber Company under the supervision of Arthur Van Horn, who had come here a short time previous. This was in 1885 that the main part of the church was enclosed, and services were held in it next year. Meantime the old wooden structure was moved to the rear of the church lot, facing on Second street, where it remained until it was dismantled in 1894.

The First church, built in the fall of 1873 in Bismarck, the first communion being held on the fourth Sunday in April, 1874.

Rev. Austin pushed forward the work during the trying years that developed during the late 80's, and was succeeded in 1889 by Rev. James M. Anderson, under whose leadership the work also progressed.

Rev. Anderson gained wide-spread attention by his opposition to efforts to establish the Louisiana lottery in the state. Before the tide turned in the legislature he preached a sermon against it, many legislators being in his congregation. The next summer, when Rev. Anderson was a delegate to the Presbyterian General Assembly at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., he told on the floor of the assembly the story of the lottery fight. As he finished he noticed a man beckoning. It was Col. Elliott Shepherd, publisher of the New York Mail and Express, who handed him a check for $1,000, and told him to use it toward the completion of the church. Other funds also were given to Rev. Anderson for this purpose on his eastern trip, and the money helped toward completion of the church.

Glider Boat Skims on Water, Ice or Snow

Ducks and Loons Use Wings to Swim under Water

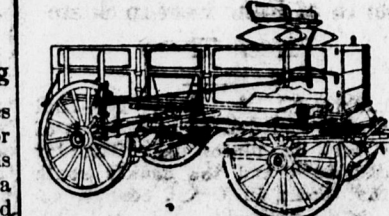

Do ducks use their wings while swimming under water? The question is discussed frequently among sportsmen and nature students, and opinions sometimes differ. Testimony of reliable authorities, however, supports the belief that various species of ducks and grebes, loons and other diving birds do use their wings when swimming beneath the surface for food or in trying to escape capture. A ruddy duck was observed in Lake Michigan not long ago, feeding in fifteen or twenty feet of clear water. As it got well started on its downward plunge, the wings, about two-thirds extended, were used in quick, short strokes at the rate of about one a second to assist in propelling it and in raising to the top as well.

Autos Worth Ten Billions Cost Billions to Run

Official estimates place the number of motor vehicles owned and operated in the United States at 14,000,000, the investment represented being about $10,000,000,000 and the total cost of maintenance close to $5,000,000,000 a year. This amount is said to equal more than half of all taxes. It is estimated that payments made by owners of motor vehicles for highway service should be in proportion to the benefits received; that taxation should not be uniform but should correspond to the highway facilities of the different states.

Spring Brake on Farm Wagon Saves Horses and Driver

Wagon brakes are automatically set when the horses stop, thus keeping the weight of the load from the holdback straps and collars, by a patented spring arrangement designed so that it can be attached to an ordinary farm vehicle. It is connected directly with the pull is exerted on the spring in front, thus making the load easier to start, as the force reaches the wagon gradually. This forward movement also releases the rear spring pressure on the brakes. In going down hills, the hand brake is available. The device saves the labor of locking the handle in the ratchet each time the wagon is stopped, eases the work of the horses and of the driver, and wears on the harness.

ALLIANCE MAY RESULT
Between Japan and France From D'Oisy's Flight

By Milton Bronner
NEA Service Staff Correspondent.
London, June 16.—Georges Edme Charles Marie Peltier D'Oisy, lieutenant in the French air force, by his record-breaking air flight to Hongkong, and beyond, not only has made American and British air experts sit up and take notice, but he has become to the Japs the most interesting man in the world.

While the Japanese exclusion laws are being discussed in America don't forget this:

With Germany crushed in a military way, with the Jap alliance with England at an end, with strained relations with us, Japan has turned her eyes to the strongest military power in the world—France.

Japanese military men swarm in France. When Lieutenant D'Oisy hopped off from Paris on his trip to French Indo-China, the biggest crowd of military experts to bid him goodbye were Japs.

And it was they who urged him and his government to continue the flight from Hanoi to Tokio. They want to see how it is done. They want to examine the machine when it lands in Japan.

And they may buy a lot of them because the same machine could hop off from Japan well-towards America.

Lieutenant D'Oisy as early as May 6, the twelfth day of his journey, had set a new world record. In that time flying by way of Bucharest, Angora, Bussorah and Bouchir, he had landed at Calcutta 6300 miles away in 12 days. He made the distance from Karachi to Agra in India, 861 miles in less than seven hours. He flew from Agra to Calcutta, 750 miles, in six hours and a half.

D'Oisy is using a regular army machine. It is what is known as a Breguet 19-A 2, furnished with a Lorraine motor of 400 horsepower. It can carry a pilot and mechanic and 450 kilograms of useful weight, 900 litres of gasoline and an appreciable quantity of oil.

Under such conditions the machine is able to do 200 kilometers per hour without trouble. It is made of duralumin.

For his great trip D'Oisy only had a reservoir of gasoline substituted for the bomb-throwing apparatus.

As the Frenchman has far exceeded the performances of the American flyers around the world, the French government is confident that French and British airmen, who are seeking aviation companies will soon get big orders from Japan for machines for its army and navy.

D'Oisy, who has made himself the hero of the hour, is 32. At 18 he volunteered for the army. In 1912 he transferred to the aviation service and in 1913 he was made a pilot.

Just before the war he made a flying tour around France. When war broke out he joined Farman's squadron. He soon won the military medal for extraordinary bravery. Later he brought down four enemy airplanes, was cited twice in the army orders, and became member of the Legion of Honor.

He was made sub-lieutenant in 1915 and lieutenant in 1917. In 1919 in a Goliath he flew from Constantinople to Paris via Sofia, Bucharest, Vienna.

In 1922 he made the trip from Paris to Bucharest in 19 hours. Since then, he has flown all over Morocco and Tunis, going all around the latter French colony in one continuous seven-hour flight.

He is a popular member of the biggest sporting clubs of France and Tunis, being known as "Pivolo."

KING PENS POETRY
Bangkok, Siam, June 16.—The King of Siam is in love with his queen. He has built a villa for her at his country place and has called it Sun Raj Radi, or the Royal Garden of Love. While the king was attending court maneuvers he wrote daily love-poems to the queen.

THEY DON'T LAUGH AT HIM NOW!

When Glenn L. Martin of Cleveland, famous airplane manufacturer, visits the "home folks" in Santa Ana, Calif., the townspeople have a different smile for him than they had when he used to take his home-made air buggies out for experiments in the barley fields. Here he is being greeted by a Santa Ana girl, Miss Ada Tulene.

COTTON PROVES PROFITABLE

For Farmers Living North of Mason-Dixon Line

By George Britt
NEA Service Writer

Cairo, Ill., June 16.—If Uncle Tom's Eliza, hot footing it across the Ohio River to freedom, had stumbled into a cotton field on the far shore, she probably would have bewailed her fate at being still below the Mason-Dixon line.

Times have changed since Eliza's day. "De land ob cotton" is no longer exclusively in the south.

Right here at the tip end of the "Egypt" section of the Yankee state of Illinois, in the counties of Pulaski, Alexander, Massac, Union and Johnson, farmers are busy today planting and cultivating cotton. Interest is tremendously keen in the new crop, and there is enthusiastic belief in its possibilities.

Test Successful
As an experiment last year between 1500 and 2000 acres of cotton were grown. It was the first time in more than fifty years, according to the oldest inhabitants. The crop proved a success, and this year there is a prospect of planting more than 20,000 acres.

Overtures have been made to join the cotton growers' associations of Tennessee or Missouri. The Illinois Agricultural Association is back of the movement and the crop promises to become a staple.

Four factors go to make southern Illinois favorable to cotton production. First is the absence of the dread boll weevil, which hasn't spread this far north. Then there is contented labor, exceptional transportation on both Ohio and Mississippi Rivers and radiating railroads, and favorable climate.

Good Climate
Cairo is only forty miles north of the Tennessee line, and weather bureau records show its climate is as warm as at points even in the state of Mississippi, in the thick of the cotton belt. The average for fifty-two years put the last killing frost in the spring at March 30 and the first in the fall on October 29. This makes an average growing season of seven months.

With such climate, with fertile river bottom soil and need for another crop to rotate with wheat, corn and clover, it is not surprising that the turn should be made toward cotton. Encouraging the farmers to make such a choice is the fact of cotton's high price. Figures indicate it is relatively the most profitable crop produced by the American farmer today.

In ancient times the seventh child of a seventh child was credited with supernatural powers.

URGES ACTION ON CLAIMS

William P. Murphy, field representative of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau at Fargo, was in the city today on business in connection with the work of the Bureau.

Mr. Murphy stated that disabled veterans of the World War should present their claims for compensation immediately as the time limit will soon expire.

"We have found that many ex-service men hesitate at filing claims," said Mr. Murphy, "but they should remember that their disabilities will grow worse instead of better. The Veterans' Bureau is endeavoring to reach all possible claimants before the time limit has expired."

TURTLE FACTORY
Melbourne, June 14.—A new industry, a turtle factory—is being established on the Laccapene Islands, off the northwest coast of West Australia. Green and Hawksbill turtles caught on the island will be treated on the spot at a special factory and the edible flesh will be shipped to London.

The word Yiddish itself is a corruption of the German "Judisch," which means Jewish.

Special Rates Are Offered To Visit College

Farmers from several counties in North Dakota will be enabled to visit the North Dakota Agricultural College and experiment station at Fargo on June 30 and July 1 at greatly reduced fares, it was announced today by the Northern Pacific Railway.

The reduced rates will be good on a special train, the "Experiment Station Farmers' Special" which will run from Mandan to Fargo in the forenoon of June 30 and return on the afternoon of July 1. This will give the farmers more than 24 hours in which to see the work which the college and the experiment station are doing to promote North Dakota agriculture.

Round trip rates to Fargo from the following points will be: Mandan, Bismarck, Driscoll and Sterling, $5; Dawson, Tappen and Steele, $3; Jamestown, Medina and Windsor, $3; Eckelson, Oriska, Sanborn and Valley City, $2.25.

The average length of life of a business man is said to be two-thirds that of a farmer.

UNDERWEIGHT CHILDREN OF CITY HELPED

Gains Are Recorded by School Nurse, in Report to Community Council

MILK DISTRIBUTION AID

The gains of the underweight children in the city during the past year shows an increase over the average gain of last year, according to the reports submitted by Miss Esther H. Teichman, school nurse. The comparison of the gains for the two years is as follows: Wechter—1922-23: 3 lbs. per child. 1923-24: 4 lbs. per child. Will—1922-23: 2 lbs. per child. 1923-24: 3x lbs. per child. Wm. Moore—1922-23: 2 lbs. per child. 1923-24: 3x lbs. per child. Richols—1922-23: 1 lb. per child. 1923-24: 3x lbs. per child.

Though there has been an epidemic of measles during the winter, together with a few cases of diphtheria, and now some smallpox, there have been no deaths among the public school children this year, Miss Teichman states.

Some difficulty has been experienced in the weighing of the children, according to Miss Teichman, as there is but one set of scales, which must be moved from one building to another.

Miss Teichman, in her report to the Woman's community council, said: "I am herewith submitting the report upon the gain of the underweights following the serving of the milk in school. But before quoting the figures, I want to express my heartiest gratitude to the Community Council for the help which I have received the past year."

"I always feel free to come to you for aid because of your kindness and interested cooperation; for I have found that when any need is placed before you, there is substantial help forthcoming. For the funds given for toilet work, glasses paid for, and the help during the dental examinations, I want to say a hearty 'thank you.'"

"More children have taken milk this year than last, though not all of these were under par. A number of parents felt that a light lunch at the school period in the form of a bottle of milk would be of benefit, particularly during the cooler weather. The number of children getting free milk has been about the same."

"The gain per child this year averaging a little higher than last year."

UNDERWEIGHT CHILDREN OF CITY HELPED

Gains Are Recorded by School Nurse, in Report to Community Council

MILK DISTRIBUTION AID

The gain of the underweight children in the city schools during the past year shows an increase over the average gain of last year, according to the reports submitted by Miss Esther H. Teichman, school nurse. The comparison of the gains for the two years is as follows:
Wachter—1922-23: 3 lbs. per child. 1923-24: 4 lbs. per child.
Will—1922-23: 2 lbs. per child. 1923-24: 3 lbs. per child.
Wm. Moore—1922-23: 2 lbs. per child. 1923-24: 2 1/2 lbs. per child.
Richholt—1922-23: 3 lbs. per child. 1923-24: 3 1/2 lbs. per child.
Though there has been an epidemic of measles during the winter, together with a few cases of diphtheria, and now some smallpox, there have been no deaths among the public school children this year, Miss Teichman states.

Some difficulty has been experienced in the weighing of the children, according to Miss Teichman, as there is but one set of scales, which must be moved from one building to another.

Miss Teichman, in her report to the Woman's community council, said:

"I am herewith submitting the report upon the gain of the underweights following the serving of the milk in school. But before quoting the figures, I want to express my heartfelt gratitude to the Community Council for the help which I have received the past year.

"I always feel free to come to you for aid, because of your kind generosity and interested cooperation; for I have found that when any need is placed before you, there is substantial help forthcoming. For the funds given for tonsil work, glasses paid for, and the help during the dental examinations, I want to say a hearty 'thank you'.

"The children have taken milk this year than last, though not all of these were under par. A number of parents felt that a light lunch at the recess period in the form of a bottle of milk would be of benefit, particularly during the cooler weather. The number of children getting free milk has been about the same.

"The gain per child this year averages a little higher than last year."

FIFTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HERE CONCLUDED WITH SPECIAL SUNDAY SERVICES

The Present church, the foundation of which was laid in 1884, the structure being completed in 1892. The chapel was added in 1907.

Interesting Facts of Early Day Struggle to Build Up The Church Are Revealed—Many Prominent in Early Life of Church Participated in Work of Raising Funds For It.

The fifty-first anniversary celebration of the First Presbyterian church concluded with Anniversary Sunday observance yesterday. Special programs were given, both morning and evening, with Dr. W. E. Roe of Jamestown College delivering the anniversary sermon.

The first Presbyterian church was organized June 16, 1873, and it was the first Presbyterian church in what is now North Dakota.

In connection with the anniversary J. L. Bell has presented some historical facts of interest, illustrating the early day struggle to found and continue the church.

The original committee for the solicitation of funds, he found on examination of records, was composed of Rev. C. B. Austin, pastor O. F. Davis, who was a well known real estate man, and George P. Flannery, now of St. Paul, who was active in the work of the church during his residence here. The architect was W. L. Dow, who was also architect of the territorial prison (the main part of the present prison) and also the C. W. Thompson home, now Bishop Wehrle's residence. The construction work was done by the Weaver Lumber Company under the supervision of Arthur Van Horn, who had come here a short time previous. This was in 1885 that the main part of the church was enclosed, and services were held in it next year. Meantime the old wooden structure was moved to the rear of the church lot, facing on Second street, where it remained until it was dismantled in 1894.

The First church, built in the fall of 1873 in Bismarck, the first communion being held on the fourth Sunday in April, 1874.

Rev. Austin pushed forward the work during the trying years, that developed during the late '80's, and was succeeded in 1893 by Rev. James M. Anderson, under whose church the work also progressed.

Rev. Anderson gained wide-spread attention by his opposition to efforts to establish the Louisiana lottery in the state. Before the tide turned in the legislature he preached a sermon against it, many legislators being in his congregation. The next summer, when Rev. Anderson was a delegate to the Presbyterian General Assembly at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. he told on the floor of the assembly the story of the lottery fight. As he finished he noticed a man beckoning. It was Col. Elliott Shepherd, publisher of the New York Mail and Express, who handed him a check for $1,000, and told him to use it toward the completion of the church. Other funds also were given to Rev. Anderson for this purpose on his eastern trip, and the money helped toward completion of the church.

ALLIANCE MAY RESULT BETWEEN JAPAN AND FRANCE From D'Oisy's Flight

By Milton Bronner
NEA Service Staff Correspondent.
London, June 16.—Georges Edme Charles Marie Peltier D'Oisy, lieutenant in the French air force, by his record-breaking air flight to Hongkong, and beyond, not only has made America and British air experts sit up and take notice, but he has become to the Japs the most interesting man in the world.

While the Japanese exclusion laws are being discussed in America don't forget this:

With Germany crushed in a military way, with the Jap alliance with England at an end, and with strained relations with us, Japan has turned her eyes to the strongest military power in the world—France.

Japanese military men swarm in France. When Lieutenant D'Oisy hopped off Paris on his trip to French Indo-China, the biggest crowd of military experts to bid him goodbye were Japs.

And it was they who urged him and his government to continue the flight from Hanoi to Tokyo. They want to see how it is done. They want to examine the machine when it lands in Japan.

And they may buy a lot of them because these same machines could hop off from Japan well-towards America.

Lieutenant D'Oisy as early as May 6, the twelfth day of his journey, had set a new world record. In that time flying by way of Bucharest, Angora, Bessarabia and Rangoon, he had landed at Calcutta 8900 miles away in 12 days. He made the distance from Karachi to Agra in India, 851 miles in less than seven hours. He flew from Agra to Calcutta, 750 miles, in six hours and a half.

D'Oisy is using a regular army machine. It is what is known as a Braguet 10-12, furnished with a 100-horsepower motor, at 400 horsepower. It can carry a pilot and mechanic and 450 kilograms of useful weight, 900 litres of gasoline and an appreciable quantity of oil.

Under such conditions the machine is able to do 200 kilometers per hour without trouble. It is made of duralumin.

For his great trip D'Oisy only had a reservoir of gasoline substituted for the bomb-throwing apparatus.

As the Frenchman has far exceeded the performances of the American to fly around the world, the French government is confident that French and British airmen, who are seeking aviation companies will soon get big orders from Japan for machines for its army and navy.

D'Oisy, who has made himself the hero of the hour, is 32. At 18 he volunteered for the army. In 1912 he transferred to the aviation service and in 1913 he was made a pilot.

Just before the war he made a flying tour around France. When war broke out he joined the military squadron. He soon won the military medal for extraordinary bravery. Later he brought down four enemy airplanes, was cited twice in the army orders of honor.

He was made sub-lieutenant in 1915 and lieutenant in 1917. In 1919 he was promoted to captain. He was sent to Paris via Sofia, Bucharest, Vienna.

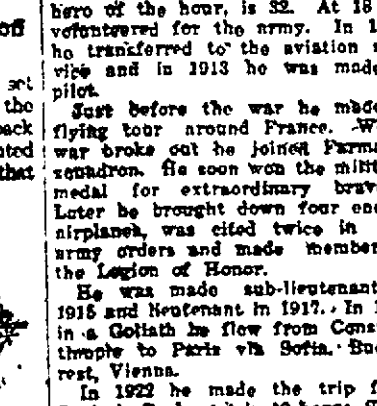

In 1922 he made the trip from Paris to Bucharest in 19 hours. Since then he has flown all over Morocco then he has flown all around the latter French colony in one continuous seven-hour flight.

He is a popular member of the biggest sporting clubs of France and Tunis, being known as "Pivolo."

Official estimates place the number of motor vehicles owned and operated in the United States at 14,000,000, the investment represented being about $10,000,000,000 and the total cost of maintenance close to $5,000,000,000 a year. This amount is said to equal more than half of all taxes. It is contended that payments made by owners of motor vehicles for highway service should be in proportion to the benefits received; that taxation should not be uniform but should correspond to the highway facilities of the different states.

The device saves the labor of locking the handle in the rubber each time the wagon is stopped, saves the work of the horses and of the driver, and saves wear on the harness.

Preventing Aerial from Rolling
One of the most common troubles experienced with spreader turns is that the aerial will roll over in a windmill and the wires cross, making it necessary to climb up on the roof to disentangle them again. A simple and effective method of preventing this trouble is to suspend a weight, which may be a heavy pipe elbow, from each spreader as shown in the illustration. The weight is tied to the center of a rope and the ends of the rope fastened to the ends of the spreader as shown.

COTTON PROVES PROFITABLE

For Farmers Living North of Mason-Dixon Line

By George Britt
NEA Service Writer
Cairo, Ill., June 16.—If Uncle Tom's Eliza, hot footed it across the Ohio River to freedom, had stumbled into a cotton field on the far shore, she probably would have bewailed her fate at being still below the Mason-Dixon line.

Times have changed since Eliza's day. "De land ob cotton" is no longer exclusively in the south. Right here at the tip end of the "Egypt" section of the Yankee state of Illinois, in the counties of Pulaski, Alexander, Massac, Union and Johnson, farmers are busy today planting and cultivating cotton. Interest is tremendously keen in the new crop, and there is enthusiastic belief in its possibilities.

Test Successful
As an experiment last year between 1900 and 2000 acres of cotton were grown. It was the first time in more than fifty years, according to the oldest inhabitants. The crop proved a success, and this year there is a prospect of planting more than 20,000 acres.

Overtures have been made to join the cotton growers' association of Tennessee or Missouri. The Illinois Agricultural Association is back of the movement and the crop promises to become a staple.

Four factors go to make southern Illinois favorable to cotton production. First is the absence of the dread boll weevil. Which has spread this far north. There has been no cotton in the state for over 50 years. Second, the Mississippi River and radiating railroads, and favorable climate.

Good Climate
Cairo is only forty miles north of the Tennessee line, and weather bureau records show its climate is as warm as at points even in the state of Mississippi. In the thick of the cotton belt. The average for fifty-two years put the last killing frost in the spring at March 30 and the first in the fall on October 29. This makes an average growing season of seven months.

With such climate, with fertile river bottom soil and need for another crop to rotate with wheat, corn and clover, it is not surprising that the turn should be made toward cotton. Encouraging the farmers to make such a choice is the fact of cotton's high price. Figures indicate it is relatively the most profitable crop produced by the American farmer today.

In ancient times the seventh child of a seventh child was credited with supernatural powers.

URGES ACTION ON CLAIMS

William P. Murphy, field representative of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau at Fargo, was in the city today on business in connection with the work of the Bureau.

Mr. Murphy stated that disabled veterans of the World War should present their claims for compensation immediately as the time limit will soon expire.

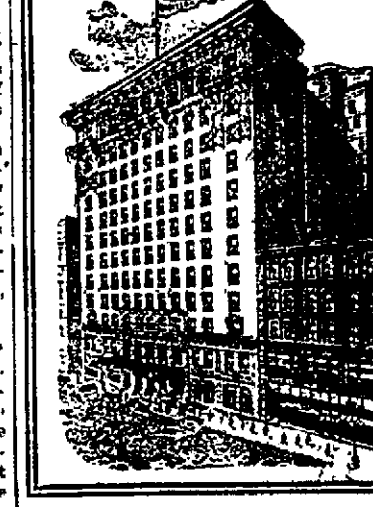

"We have found that many ex-servicemen hesitate at filing claims," said Mr. Murphy, "but they should remember that their disabilities will grow worse instead of better. The Veterans' Bureau is endeavoring to reach all possible claimants before the time limit has expired."

Melbourne, June 16.—A new industry—a turtle factory—is being established on the Laccapere Islands, off the northwest coast of West Australia. Green and Hawksbill turtles caught on the island will be treated on the spot at a special factory and the edible flesh will be shipped to London.

Glider Boat Skims on Water, Ice or Snow

Designed to skim over the surface of the water or across ice or snow, a sea-going "glider," equipped with an airplane engine and propeller, is being tested. The inventor has planned the craft as an aid to police and government officials in chasing lawbreakers.

Ducks and Loons Use Wings to Swim Under Water
Do ducks use their wings while swimming under water? The question is discussed frequently among sportsmen and naturalists. Testimony of reliable authorities, however, supports the belief that various species of ducks and geese, loons and other diving birds do use their wings when swimming beneath the surface for the purpose of trying to escape capture. A rubber duck was observed in Lake Michigan not long ago, feeding in the water and out of clear water. As it swam it started its downward "dive," the wings about two-thirds extended. When used in quick, short strokes, as the water of about one a second to keep it from sinking and to keep it from sinking and to keep it from sinking.

Special Rates Are Offered To Visit College

Farmers from several counties in North Dakota will be enabled to visit the North Dakota Agricultural College and experiment station at Fargo on June 30 and July 1 at greatly reduced fares. It was announced today by the Northern Pacific Railway.

The reduced rates will be good on a special train, the "Experiment Station Farmers' Special" which will run from Mandan to Fargo in the forenoon of June 30 and return on the afternoon of July 1. This will give the farmers more than 24 hours in which to see the work which the college and the experiment station are doing to promote North Dakota agriculture.

Round trip rates to Fargo from the following points will be: Mandan, Bismarck, Driscoll and Sterling, $5; Dawson, Tappen and Steele, $4; Jamestown, Medina and Windsor, $3; Eckelson, Oriska, Sanborn and Valley City, $2.25.

The average length of life of a Luovian man is said to be two-thirds that of a farmer.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

MUSIC
Nothing is lasting. Change is eternal and constant. The greatest mountain every second becomes smaller as rain washes it away to the sea. And the sea, in turn, is slowly filling up.
Just when a man thinks he has achieved something, he finds the forces of disintegration attacking him. Phonograph makers built up a giant industry, sold two and a quarter million machines and 107 million records in 1920. They felt secure.
Then came the radio craze. It has put half of the phonograph makers out of business, fewer than 100 surviving. The two industries are joining hands. What will come along and crowd radio to the corner? Something, that's inevitable.

CHEAPER
Edison put the incandescent electric light on the market in 1879. For years later, rates became uniform at 20 cents a kilowatt hour. The price today, for small consumers, averages eight cents—or less than half what it originally was.

The same is true of thousands of other articles. When people say cost of living has doubled, they refer to food, clothing, rent and other basic items. Ingenuity in manufacturing has lowered more other prices than any of us realize. Can't compare our cost of living with grandpa's, for he didn't have a hundredth of the things we use and consider indispensable.

LOSS
Pathetic stories come from Germany, about old people whose life savings have been wiped out by the collapse of the value of the mark. We saw one letter, a man of 65 had managed to scrape together 80,000 marks by long self-denial and saving. His 80,000 marks have depreciated so much that they won't buy a package of cigarettes.
More fortunate are the people who had their savings invested in homes, land or other property. Life is precarious. All values are uncertain. But land, on the average, seems the safest bet. For one thing, it never wears out.

SIDE-LINE
From Argentina comes word that teachers there are not allowed to work full-time. They can have classes morning or afternoon, but not both. This gives them opportunity to devote half the day to outside jobs in business, trades or professions. So it's not uncommon to find a doctor or lawyer teaching a daily class.

This divided-activity system might be welcomed by teachers in America—which pays its brain instructors outrageous pay. But that's the natural reaction of a race devoting nine-tenths of its time and money to the body, only a tenth to the intellect.

HOLE
The search for wealth continues never-endingly and takes strange forms. Now men seeking riches are going deeper into the earth than ever before. The supply of natural gas is swiftly dwindling. So a hole two miles deep, in hopes of gas at a new low level, is being drilled near Terra Alta, W. Va.

A wildcatting oil well at Carnarvon, South Africa, has reached a depth of nearly a mile. Far away, in the San Juan Del Ray mine in Brazil, miners work 6726 feet underground. We would be a race of Socrates if we were a hundredth as industrious for knowledge as for riches.

SIBERIA
Gold—enough to give $100,000 apiece to 60,000 people—lies unmined in Siberia, waiting to be taken out of the ground. Six billion dollars is the total value. This is the estimate of American mining engineers who have been looking the country over.

And yet this gold is only a shadow of Siberia's greater natural resources—fabulous amounts of coal and oil, metals and farming soil that grows everything from tobacco and cotton to grapes and watermelons.

This treasure is at Japan's elbow. She knows it. Watch.

AHOY!
Some of the French are working like beavers to repair war losses, while their leaders chew the rag and play to the galleries.

A striking example is the French merchant marine, now 4,200,000 tons. That's almost twice as big as before the war. In 1919 it had dropped to about 1,700,000 tons.

Is it a natural growth? French cling to their homeland more than any other race. How many French immigrants have you ever seen?

UNDERGROUND
Strange and ancient people who live in holes in the ground are discovered in Africa. Ashton, explorer who found them, calls them Troglodytes, meaning "cave dwellers."
The apartment house dweller in our cities has much in common with the African Troglodytes. Yet either would pay admission to see the other in his native haunts. Next time you're at the zoo or circus, observe that the monkeys are more interested in the crowds than the crowds in the monkeys.

HAT
Cork hats are on the market. Lighter than straw. Easily cleaned. Shape themselves to the head.
Maybe you've noticed the increasing number of articles made of cork. Behold the cork industry ingeniously turning its talents to new fields to compensate for business lost through prohibition.
An industry never admits failure. It merely shifts its tactics in another direction. So should individuals, foiled.

IS MR. BRYAN'S INFLUENCE NEGLIGIBLE?

Intimation has been given that in arranging the program of spectacular events with which it is planned to mark the high spots in the forthcoming Democratic National Convention in New York, no leading role has been assigned to William Jennings Bryan.

Indeed, it is given out that it is expected Mr. Bryan's influence in the 1924 convention will be "almost negligible."

How strange that sounds in view of the important part he played in almost every national gathering of his party since 1896.
Previous to the Chicago convention, that year, the then somewhat doubtful Nebraska had not been regarded as one capable of wielding more than a negligible influence. Richard P. Bland, the veteran leader of the so-called free silver forces, was regarded as the probable, as well as the logical, choice of the convention.

But all prearranged plans were forgotten in the enthusiasm aroused by the persuasive eloquence of "the boy orator from the Platte." His "crown of thorns and cross of gold" speech, destined to become a classic of forensic oratory, won his own nomination for the Presidency. Thence he has been the standard-bearer of the Democracy, though as many times defeated at the polls.

But it should not be forgotten that the only Democratic President elected since Grover Cleveland was nominated through the influence, if not actually at the dictation of William Jennings Bryan.

Champ Clark of Missouri, backed by the same powerful Democratic influence in the east that now demand the nomination of Governor Smith of New York, would inevitably have been chosen at the Baltimore convention in 1912 but for the opposition of Mr. Bryan.

Has the Commoner sheathed the sword once drawn in defiance of Tammany? Evidently the leaders of the Smith campaign are endeavoring to persuade themselves that he has, or, if he has not, that the sharp edge of his weapon has been dulled and rendered innocuous.

Mr. Bryan, it is announced, will be one of the eight delegates to the convention comprising the Florida quota. He is no longer a Nebraska, as is well known, but a resident of and a voter in Florida.

It has been arranged, perhaps tentatively and without reckoning with the possible influence of Mr. Bryan, that the Florida delegation, on the first roll call when the time comes for nominating speeches, shall yield to the New York delegation, thus giving the Smith supporters an opportunity to present their candidate and stage their arranged stampede early in the game.

The question is as to the tractability of the Commoner. Will he, in the event of his grievance against Tammany Hall, sit passively and quietly while his candidate is being extolled?

It is not to be believed that Mr. Bryan has either forgotten or forgiven. His silence at that time would be a confession that he has accepted his influence in the political councils of his party as waned. Will he agree that it has become negligible? Looking backward at the peerless leader of a few years ago, one is inclined to hazard the guess that he will not remain silent.—Christian Science Monitor.

DAIRY FARMING NOT A CURE-ALL

Despite the various "campaigns" of newspapers and organizations, based on the theory that the dairy cow is strong enough all by herself to drag the wheat farmers of the northwest out of their mire of difficulties, a bulletin just issued by the farm management experts at the University Farm advises caution in the matter of dairy expansion.

In the last decade Minnesota has added half a million dairy cows to her herds, bringing the total up to 1,674,000. Moreover, the average production of milk per cow has probably increased appreciably. In the same period the ratio of cow population of the country has increased from 214 to 221 cows for each thousand of human beings.

In view of these facts, and of the recent increase in imports of dairy products from other countries, the bulletin makes the prudent comment that it "is time to exercise caution in the dairy business." It goes on:

"Farmers in favorable localities who are already equipped should probably continue in dairy production. Others whose location and resources naturally favor the dairy business may well proceed to grow into it. It looks like a poor time, however, to buy into the business, or attempt to develop dairying in localities not naturally favorable to the industry."

The wheat-growing industry is sick, but it is not to be cured by the simple expedient of getting all wheat-growers to buy dairy cows, and take on a branch of farming about which they may know little or nothing, and for which their lands may not be well adapted. It is quite possible to overdo the dairy business, just as the wheat business has been overdone.

It is generally admitted, of course, that one-crop farming is a mistake. What is needed is a balanced agriculture. Each farm should be developed into a self-sustaining unit with its work and production on a 12-month basis.

The farmers who remain prosperous today are those who raise almost everything they need on their own land. They do not expect to carry themselves through a whole year by a few months' work raising wheat. They do not buy meats and canned stuff for their tables, but produce most of their own food.

As a writer of the Farm Congress puts it:

"The American wheat grower cannot compete with the cheap land, cheap labor and lower transportation costs of other countries, unless he can take part of the overhead expenses of his farm off his wheat crop."

"What is needed is a program which will bring in revenue every week in the year, to supplement the wheat check. Poultry, dairy cows and other live stock will do this. It will also largely supply the home table and convert the farm into a well rounded out economic unit."

"Furthermore, there are other crops, such as sugar beets, flax, oil-producing beans and many others, the products of which are imported in large quantities, because the domestic supply is inadequate. The acreage of these should be increased in place of wheat."

Here is a practical philosophy of farming that will bring results, when inflated credits, utopian experiments in price-fixing, and all the variegated schemes of farm blocs and political friends of the farmer go up in smoke.—Minneapolis Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS
BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The next night when Johnny Jump Up came to dance on the Twin's window sill in the moonlight, they were waiting for him, all dressed and ready to go.

All except the little shoes which Johnny carried in his pocket.

"We are going on a journey to-night," cried Nick.

"We are if the moon doesn't blow up," answered Johnny Jump Up, making a funny face. "But the moon sent me word that he thinks it's not likely to blow up because it's made of ice mostly."

"Then we're going," said Nancy.

The Jones child came home one night with a little card from the teacher, advising attention to teeth.

Not that the child's teeth were neglected, but this was merely part of a hygienic campaign in the school.

Mr. Jones was surprised to learn that in a group of 1400 children, 95.5 per cent showed defective teeth. As many as seven cavities per child were found, and these at such young ages as 7 and 8. High school teeth, happily, running up to the little fairyman and taking the tiny shoes he held out.

Just as before, as soon as they touched the shoes, they became as little as gumdrops.

"Follow me," commanded Johnny Jump Up next. So all three climbed out of the window and down the rose vine into the magic garden.

Johnny Jump Up did a string of somersaults across the posy beds, not touching a flower, but when he reached a patch of blue-bells, he stopped.

"Tingalingaling," went one big blue-bell when he shook it.

"Hoot hoot," who's there?" cried a tiny little fellow, popping his head out.

"It's me, Sandy. I mean it's us," said Johnny Jump Up quickly. (Johnny never had gone to school and his grammar was awful).

"Sandy, this is Nancy and Nick. Nancy and Nick, this is Sandy, the Scotch fairy, who lives in the blue-bells."

"Good evening," said the Twins politely.

"Gud een, bonnie bairns," said Sandy, tipping his funny cap. Indeed, all his clothes were different from any the children had ever seen.

"I have brought the tickets," he said. "If you are going to Scotland tonight, you had better be starting."

"So we had. Where's that ticket?" asked Johnny. "He's our express train and ocean-boat and dents were found to have missing first molars to an unusual extent.

Such figures cause one to think. Children should be instructed in proper prophylactic care of the mouth.

Regular visits to the dentist should be made and fillings and cleanings attended to in time to prevent extractions.

Emphasis should be put on the importance of mouth hygiene, that the child may grow up with good teeth.

After he had punched them with his bill, all three of the travelers, Nancy and Nick and Johnny Jump Up, piled on Tommy Titmouse's back, and away he flew over land and sea to Scotland. It was moonlight at home but daylight there and they could see everything.

Scotland was certainly a bonnie country, as Sandy would have said. The highlands were beautiful, full of green ferny places and lovely water-falls and clear streams where water-cress grew.

And there were fields and fields of heather, a low plant of a purple color that is beautiful in the sun.

And there were great cities where people were hurrying to and fro, never guessing that up in the air three curious little people and a bird were looking down at them.

Suddenly they heard a funny noise. It went squeeze-roar—and then made more sounds that were more like growling than music.

"Those are bag-pipes," said Johnny Jump Up. "They look as odd as they sound, but the Scotch people love them. But we must be going back to the magic garden now. Titmouse, please take us home."

THE MARVELS OF 1840

By Albert Apple

Back in 1840 a book called "The Cabinet of Curiosities" was published in New York. It had a big sale for those times, because the author realized that every generation thinks it is living in the greatest period of history.

Let us consider one of the marvels of 1840 and compare it with the marvels of 1924. We quote from the old book: "The world no longer resembles the world of Columbus. On those unknown seas—above which was seen to rise a black hand, the hand of Satan, which seized ships in the night and dragged them to the bottom of the abyss—packets perform regular voyages, for the conveyance of letters and passengers."

"Instead of those rude, filthy, infectious, damp ships in which you had nothing but salt provisions to live upon, and were devoured by scurvy, elegant vessels offer to passengers cabins wainscotted with mahogany, provided with carpets, adorned with mirrors, flowers, libraries, musical instruments and all the delicacies of good cheer."

"As for tempests, we laugh at them! Distances have disappeared! Steamboats no longer care for contrary winds on the ocean, or for opposing currents in rivers; they are floating palaces of two or even three stories, from whose galleries the traveler admires the most magnificent scenery. The genius of man is truly great for his petty habitation."

The travelers of 1840 thought they experienced the final word in luxury and progress when they had safe ships with mirrors on the walls, flowers aboard, and genuine carpets on the floor.

We wonder what those same travelers would say if they could come back to life and journey on a modern ocean liner with its electric lights, indoor swimming pool and radio music from afar.

Or if they could travel in one of those airplanes that are making the round-the-world flight.

Alas, it is a blow to vanity, but our ocean liners and flying machines may seem as pathetically crude to people 84 years from now as the passenger packets of 84 years ago seem to us.

The only consolation is that the 1840 travelers got as much "kick" out of his generation's wonders as we get out of ours or future generations will get from theirs.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN
PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON
DEAR SYD:

I am sending you a letter I received yesterday from Paula Perier and I am asking you, "Can you beat it?"

I know that right here you have skipped everything else and are asking, "who is the girl you were seen with at the restaurant?"

I am not going to tell you who she was, Syd. I am too full of the peculiar psychology of Paula's letter.

I thought I knew women, I thought I knew everyone of their little idiosyncrasies, I thought I knew not only what they were thinking but the way they would work out any given proposition, but I confess I am stamped with this.

That letter is a hummer. I know you will agree with me there. Think of it Syd, a former sweetheart writes to the husband of the woman for whom she was thrown down and pleads that he will not, in the future, give his wife any excuse for being unhappy!

Great Scotland, if that is not a situation for a French farce or an American tragedy, whichever way you look at it, then I am a boob.

I can really see nothing harmful when a woman is away from her husband, if he takes his secretary out for a dinner.

Yes, you've guessed it. It was Sally Atherton, and I'll bet anything you want to wager that if she wasn't such a striking looking woman no one would have thought anything about it. I'll also be willing to take a few side bets that Paula Perier would have no scruples about my going to dinner with a girl, if she were the girl.

I do not believe, either that it will make Leslie unhappy when she finds that I have been dining many times with her good friend, Sally Atherton, while she was away. Of course, I shall tell her. I know if I do not do this Sally will. She is the frankest and most open-minded woman I have ever known.

Leslie is not a jealous woman. On the contrary, she has proved her great love for me as well as her great understanding of men by forgiving me little Jack and taking him into her heart.

Why, do you know, Sydney, that I believe that Leslie loves that boy better than she does me.

I am not at all afraid of what Leslie will think or say about this matter, but I was much interested in what Paula said and what she probably thinks. That is the reason I am sending her letter to you.

It is a modern viewpoint, isn't it? My mother had the idea that if a woman had once "fallen," as she used to call it, she could never be trusted again. Nowadays we find the theory turned around. Paula has proved that she can arise above her early indiscretions, but she thinks that I am not to be trusted ever again.

FRANCE PREPARES WITH
AIRSHIPS FOR NEXT WARBy Milton Bronner
NEA Service Writer

London, June 16.—It is nearly midnight and in the warm moonlight air of Paris at its most beautiful you are walking along on your way to your hotel. Suddenly ahead of you, way up in the air, you see what seems to be three stars—a green one, a reddish one and a whitish one.

They are too high up and too much to the right to be lights on the Eiffel tower and besides—they are moving. You are sure of it. It can't be an optical delusion. And then, after a time of eye-strain, the midnight mystery is revealed.

They are the lights of a giant airship silently moving over sleeping Paris. This French airship is not silvery in glint and outline. Instead, it has a smoky brown look even in the brilliant night. Its commander and crew are making one of their regular practice trips. In some similar manner they could float, a sinister menace, over some other sleeping city.

In this way France perfects her air service—the greatest and most efficient in the world. In this way France makes ready for the next war—which they fear is closer than we in America dream.

There is something besides the summer weather which is heating up the little new state of Finland. The Finns, jealous of their newly-won liberty from the Russian bear, and, nevertheless, fearing the powerful claws of the same animal, rely very much upon their army.

And now their army threatens to be all shot to pieces, not by bullets, but by internal jealousies, rivalries and politics.

The other day 800 officers sent in their resignation because of their dissatisfaction with the commander-in-chief and the general staff. Another grievance is that many of the superior posts are held by men who were trained in the old days in the Russian Army and had posts in that army.

The younger men think the army ought to be very largely handled by officers who have no Russian traditions at all, but who owe all their training to their own Finland.

Holland during the war was often accused of being pro-German, but there is nothing at all pro-German in Dutch fears that their big neighbor may be casting covetous eyes at their rich colonies.

The Dutch, of course, know that the former allied powers would not allow Germany to grab the immense wealth and valuable Dutch East Indies by main force. What the Dutch fear is peaceful penetration by means of all kinds of big concessions. In that way they figure that some day they might wake up and find the main benefit of their colonies going to Germany.

So at the opening of the Dutch Peoples Council, Dr. Fock, governor general of the East Indies, went out of his way to kill that bogey. He said there was no intention to give permanent positions to concessionaires in the Dutch East Indies, nor to grant rights over large areas.

Cooperation would be welcomed where the development of Dutch colonies insured first of all to the benefit of the Dutch nation.

A CIGAR SANDWICH
Antwerp, June 16.—Henri Eufie showed a new delicacy to the proprietor of an Antwerp cafe and then went to jail. He ordered a ham sandwich and two cigars and put the cigars in the sandwich. But in this way he attracted such attention to himself that he couldn't walk out without paying, as he tried to do. The police took him to jail while he munched on his ham and Havana sandwich.

BY MARIAN HALE

A shortage of dog collars threatens. This condition is due, not to a plethora of pups, but of fashionable women who have suddenly discovered how very smart this accessory of Fido's really is.

And whereas one dog wears one collar at a time, the smart woman doubles and wears two, so you can see where the poor canines are going to come out in the matter. The latest sartorial sensation in Paris is the matching of choker and hat band, each formed of a dog collar.

The photograph above shows you just how effective such a set may be when bordered on each side with a band of white monkey fur over black.

For sports costumes, street frocks, and almost every type of dress except the strictly formal sort, such an adornment is most desirable. And there is this advantage, the dog collar at its most exorbitant figure is much cheaper than the silver fox.

Another innovation is the combination vanity box and umbrella. Everyone knows how hard it is to stay beautifully rouged and powdered during the sort of weather we have had all spring.

This new umbrella contains all the make-up making the most fastidious woman requires, with a fair sized mirror as well, all packed neatly beneath the surface of the tooled leather handle.

Furthermore, it dispenses with necessity for a handbag entirely, since besides the essentials of the complexion, it also provides a small compartment for small change and even a bill or so, if it is compactly rolled.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

MUSIC

Nothing is lasting. Change is eternal and constant. The greatest mountain every second becomes smaller as rain washes it away to the sea. And the sea, in turn, is slowly filling up.

Just when a man thinks he has achieved something, he finds the forces of disintegration attacking him. Phonograph makers built up a giant industry, sold two and a quarter million machines and 107 million records in 1920. They felt secure.

Then came the radio craze. It has put half of the phonograph makers out of business, fewer than 100 surviving. The two industries are joining hands. What will come along and crowd radio to the corner? Something, that's inevitable.

CHEAPER

Edison put the incandescent electric light on the market in 1879. For years later, rates became uniform at 20 cents a kilowatt hour. The price today, for small consumers, averages eight cents—or less than half what it originally was.

The same is true of thousands of other articles. When people say cost of living has doubled, they refer to food, clothing, rent and other basic items. Ingenuity in manufacturing has lowered more other prices than any of us realize. Can't compare our cost of living with grandpa's, for he didn't have a hundredth of the things we use and consider indispensable.

LOSS

Pathetic stories come from Germany, about old people whose life savings have been wiped out by the collapse of the value of the mark. We saw one letter, a man of 65 had managed to scrape together 80,000 marks by long self-denial and saving. His 80,000 marks have depreciated so much that they won't buy a package of cigarettes.

More fortunate are the people who had their savings invested in homes, land or other property. Life is precarious. All values are uncertain. But land, on the average, seems the safest bet. For one thing, it never wears out.

SIDE-LINE

From Argentina comes word that teachers there are not allowed to work full-time. They can have classes morning or afternoon, but not both. This gives them opportunity to devote half the day to outside jobs in business, trades or professions. So it's not uncommon to find a doctor or lawyer teaching a daily class.

This divided-activity system might be welcomed by teachers in America—which pays its brain instructors outrageously low. But that's the natural reaction of a race devoting nine-tenths of its time and money to the body, only a tenth to the intellect.

HOLE

The search for wealth continues never-endingly and takes strange forms. Now men seeking riches are going deeper into the earth than ever before. The supply of natural gas is swiftly dwindling. So a hole two miles deep, in hopes of gas at a new low level, is being drilled near Terra Alta, W. Va.

A wildcatting oil well at Carnarvon, South Africa, has reached a depth of nearly a mile. Far away, in the San Juan Del Ray mine in Brazil, miners work 6726 feet underground. We would be a race of Socrateses if we were a hundredth as industrious for knowledge as for riches.

SIBERIA

Gold—enough to give $100,000 apiece to 60,000 people—lies unmined in Siberia, waiting to be taken out of the ground. Six billion dollars is the total value. This is the estimate of American mining engineers who have been looking the country over.

And yet this gold is only a shadow of Siberia's greater natural resources—fabulous amounts of coal and oil, metals and farming soil that grows everything from tobacco and cotton to grapes and watermelons.

This treasure is at Japan's elbow. She knows it. Watch.

AH-OY!

Some of the French are working like beavers to repair war losses, while their leaders chew the rag and play to the galleries.

A striking example is the French merchant marine, now 4,200,000 tons. That's almost twice as big as before the war. In 1919 it had dropped to about 1,700,000 tons.
Is it a natural growth? French cling to their homeland more than any other race. How many French immigrants have you ever seen?

UNDERGROUND

Strange and ancient people who live in holes in the ground are discovered in Africa. Ashton, explorer who found them, calls them Troglodytes, meaning "cave dwellers."

The apartment house dweller in our cities has much in common with the African Troglodytes. Yet either would pay admission to see the other in his native haunts. Next time you're at the zoo or circus, observe that the monkeys are more interested in the crowds than the crowds in the monkeys.

HAT

Cork hats are on the market. Lighter than straw. Easily cleaned. Shape themselves to the head.

Maybe you've noticed the increasing number of articles made of cork. Behold the cork industry ingeniously turning its talents to new fields to compensate for business lost through prohibition.

An industry never admits failure. It merely shifts its tactics in another direction. So should individuals, folks.

Editorial Review

IS MR. BRYAN'S INFLUENCE NEGIGIBLE?

Intimation has been given that in arranging the program of spectacular events with which it is planned to mark the high spots in the forthcoming Democratic/National Convention in New York, no leading role has been assigned to William Jennings Bryan.

Indeed, it is given out that it is expected Mr. Bryan's influence in the 1924 convention will be "at most negligible."

How strange that sounds in view of the important part he played in almost every national gathering of his party since 1896.

Previous to the Chicago convention, that year, the then somewhat youthful Nebraska had not been regarded as one capable of wielding more than a negligible influence.

Richard P. Bland, the veteran leader of the so-called free silver forces, was regarded as the probable, as well as the logical, choice of the convention.

But all prearranged plans were forgotten in the enthusiasm aroused by the persuasive eloquence of "the boy orator from the Platte."

His "crown" of thistles and cross of gold" speech, destined to become a classic of forensic oratory, won his own nomination for the Presidency. Thrice he has been the standard-bearer of the Democracy, though as many times defeated at the polls.

But it should not be forgotten that the only Democratic President elected since Grover Cleveland was nominated through the influence of not actually at the dictation of William Jennings Bryan.

Champ Clark of Missouri, backed by the same powerful Democratic influences in the east that now demand the nomination of Governor Smith of New York, would inevitably have been chosen at the Baltimore convention in 1912 but for the opposition of Mr. Bryan.

The commoner sheathed the sword once drawn in defense of Tammany? Evidently the leaders of the Smith campaign are endeavoring to persuade themselves that he has, or, if he has not, that the sharp edge of his weapon has been dulled and rendered innocuous.

Mr. Bryan, it is announced, will be one of the eight delegates to the convention comprising the Florida quota. He is no longer a Nebraskan, as is well known, but a resident of and a voter in Florida.

It has been arranged, perhaps tentatively and without reckoning with the possible influence of Mr. Bryan, that the Florida delegation, on the first roll call when the delegates for nominating speeches, shall yield to the New York delegation, thus giving the Smith supporters an opportunity to present their candidate and stage their arranged stampede early in the game.

The question is as to the tractability of the Commoner. Will he forget his grievances against Tammany Hall, sit passively and quietly while his candidate is being extolled?

It is not to be believed that Mr. Bryan has either forgotten or forgiven. His silence at that time would indicate that he has agreed that his influence in the political councils of his party has waned.

Will he agree that it has become negligible? Looking backward at the peerless leader of a few years ago, one is inclined to hazard the guess that he will not remain silent.—Christian Science Monitor.

DAIRY FARMING NOT A CURE-ALL

Despite the various "campaigns" of newspapers and organizations, based on the theory that the dairy cow is strong enough all by herself to drag the wheat farmers of the northwest out of their mire of difficulties, a farm management expert at the University Farm advises caution in the matter of dairy expansion.

In the last decade Minnesota has added half a million dairy cows to her herds, bringing the total up to 1,674,000. Moreover, the average production of milk per cow has increased appreciably.

In the same period the ratio of cow population of the country has increased from 214 to 221 cows for each thousand of human beings.

In view of these facts, and of the recent increase in imports of dairy products from other countries, the bulletin makes the prudent comment that it "is time to exercise caution in the dairy business."

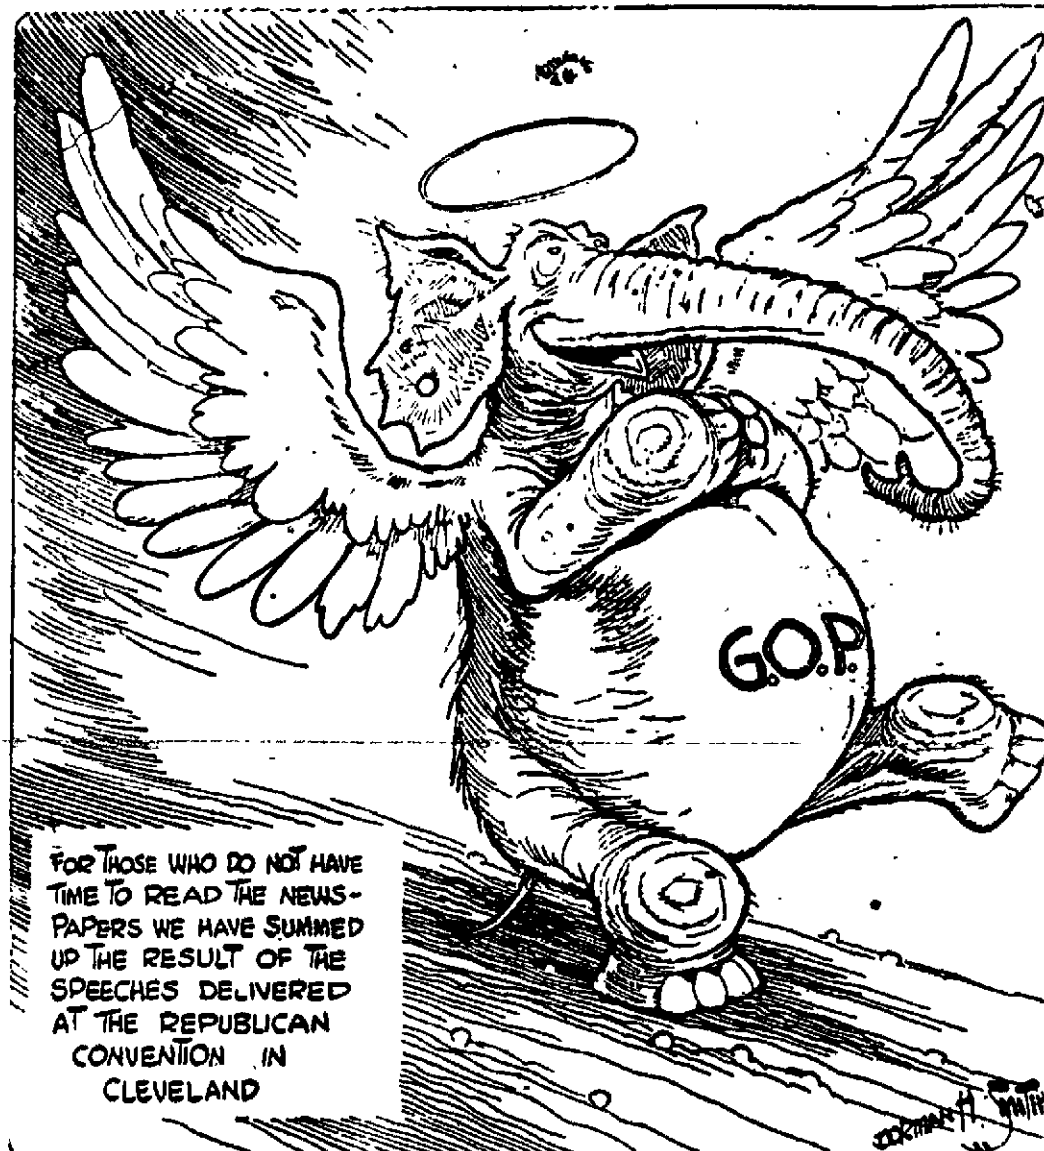

"Farmers in favorable localities who are already equipped should probably continue in dairy production. Others whose location and resources naturally favor the dairy business, may well proceed to grow into it. It looks like a poor time, however, to buy into the business, or attempt to develop dairying in localities not naturally favorable to the industry."

The wheat-growing industry is sick, but it is not to be cured by the simple expedient of getting all wheat-growers to buy dairy cows, and take on a branch of farming about which they may know little or nothing, and for which their lands may not be well adapted. It is quite possible to overdo the dairy business, just as the wheat business has been overdone.

It is generally admitted, of course, that one-crop farming is a mistake. What is needed is a balanced agriculture. Each farm should be developed into a self-sustaining unit with its work and production on a 12-month basis.

The farmers who remain prosperous today are those who raise almost everything they need on their own land. They do not expect to carry themselves through-out a whole year by a few months' work raising wheat. They do not buy wheat and canned stuff for

FABLES ON HEALTH

TAKE CARE OF TEETH

The Jones child came home one night with a little card from the teacher, advising attention to teeth.

Not that the child's teeth were neglected, but this was merely part of a hygienic campaign in the school.

Mr. Jones was surprised to learn that in a group of 1400 children, 96.5 per cent showed defective teeth. As many as seven cavities per child were found, and these at such young ages as 7 and 8. High school students happily, running up to the little fairyman and taking the tiny shoes he held out.

Just as before, as soon as they touched the shoes, they became as little as gnomes.

"Follow me," commanded Johnny Jump Up next. So all three climbed out of the window and down the rose vine into the magic garden.

Johnny Jump Up did a string of somersaults across the mossy beds, not touching a flower, but when he reached a patch of blue-bells, he stopped.

"Primingaling!" went one big blue-bell when he shook it.

"Hoot morn, who's there?" cried a tiny little fellow, popping his head out.

"It's me, Sandy. I mean it's us," said Johnny Jump Up quickly. (Johnny never had gone to school and his grammar was awful).

"Sandy, this is Nancy and Nick. Nancy and Nick, this is Sandy, the Scotch fairy, who lives in the blue-bells."

"Good evening," said the Twins politely.

"Gud een, bonnie bairns," said Sandy, tipping his funny cap. Indeed, all his clothes were different from any the children had ever seen.

"I have brought the tickets," he said. "If you are going to Scotland tonight, you had better be starting."

"So we had. Where's that titmouse?" asked Johnny. "He's out express train and ocean-boat and dentists were found to have missing first molars to an unusual extent.

Such figures cause one to think. Children should be instructed in proper prophylactic care of the mouth.

Regular visits to the dentist should be made and fillings and cleanings attended to in time to prevent extractions.

Emphasis should be put on the importance of mouth hygiene, that the child may grow up with good teeth.

airplane all rolled into one. Titmouse, oh, Titmouse, where are you?"

"Here I am," said Tommy Titmouse flying down from a tree.

"Where are your tickets?"

After he had punched them with his bill, all three of the travelers, Nancy and Nick and Johnny Jump Up, piled on Tommy Titmouse's back, and away he flew over land and sea to Scotland. It was moonlight at home but daylight there and they could see everything.

Scotland was certainly a bonnie country, as Sandy would have said. The highlands were beautiful, full of green ferny places and lovely water-falls and clear streams where water-cress grew.

And there were fields and fields of heather, a low plant of a purple color that is beautiful in the sun.

And there were great cities where people were hurrying to and fro, never guessing that up in the air three curious little people and a bird were looking down at them.

Suddenly they heard a funny noise. It was a squeak—a squeak—and then made more sounds that were more like growling than music.

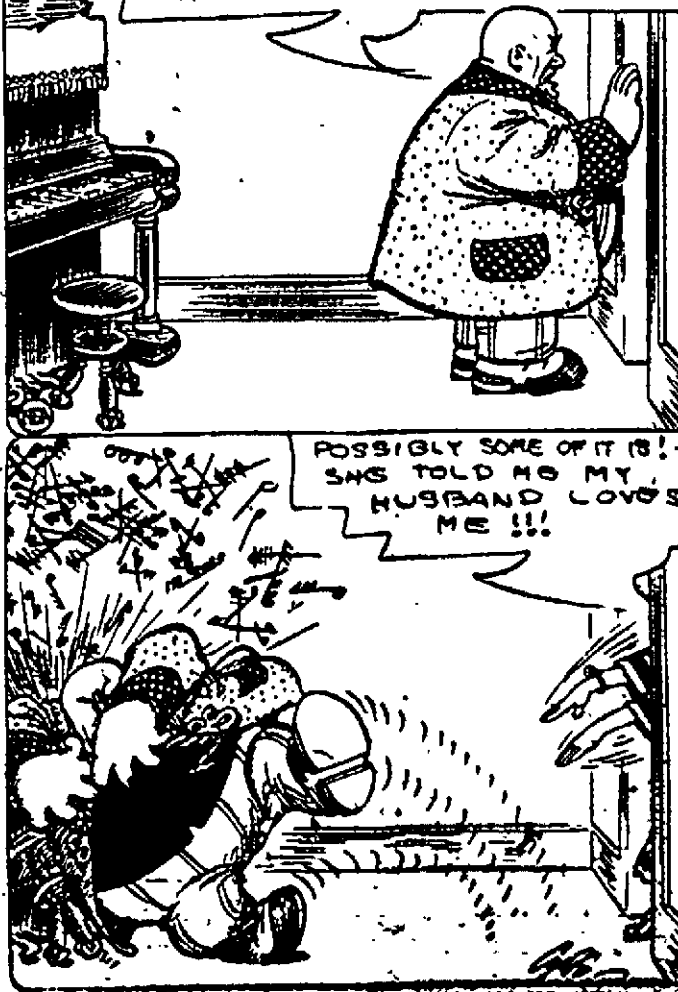

"Those are bag-pipes," said Johnny Jump Up. "They look as odd as they sound, but the Scotch people love them. But we must be going back to the magic garden now. Titmouse, please take us home."

EVERETT TRUE BY CONDO

—AND I WANT TO SAY, MRS. TRUE THAT I'M SURPRISED THAT A WOMAN OF YOUR MENTAL CAPACITY SHOULD PATRONIZE A FORTUNE TELLER! DON'T YOU KNOW THAT STUFF IS THE VERIEST BUNK!

THE MARVELS OF 1840

By Albert Apple

Back in 1840 a book called "The Cabinet of Curiosities" was published in New York. It had a big sale for those times, because the author realized that every generation thinks it is living in the greatest period of history.

Let us consider one of the marvels of 1840 and compare it with the marvels of 1924. We quote from the old book: "The world no longer resembles the world of Columbus. On those unknown seas—above which was seen to rise a black hand, the hand of Satan, which seized ships in the night and dragged them to the bottom of the abyss—packets perform regular voyages, for the conveyance of letters and passengers."

"Instead of those rude, filthy, infectious, damp ships in which you had nothing but salt provisions to live upon, and were devoured by scurvy, elegant vessels offer to passengers cabins wainscotted with mahogany, provided with carpets, adorned with mirrors, flowers, libraries, musical instruments and all the delicacies of good cheer.

"As for tempests, we laugh at them! Distances have disappeared! Steamboats no longer care for contrary winds on the ocean, or for opposing currents in rivers; they are floating palaces of two or even three stories, from whose galleries the traveler admires the most magnificent scenery. The genius of man is truly great for his petty habitation."

The travelers of 1840 thought they experienced the final word in luxury and progress when they had safe ships with mirrors on the walls, flowers aboard, and genuine carpets on the floor.

We wonder what those same travelers would say if they could come back to life and journey on a modern ocean liner with its electric lights, indoor swimming pool and radio music from afar.

Or if they could travel in one of those airplanes that are making the round-the-world flight.

Alas, it is a blow to vanity, but our ocean liners and flying machines may seem as pathetically crude to people 84 years from now as the passenger packets of 84 years ago seem to us.

The only consolation is that the 1840 travelers got as much "kick" out of his generation's wonders as we get out of ours or future generations will get from theirs.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON DEAR SYD:

I am sending you a letter I received yesterday from Paula Perler and I am asking you, "Can you beat it?"

I know that right here you have skipped everything else and are asking, "who is the girl you were seen with at the restaurant?"

I am not going to tell you who she was, Syd; I am too full of the peculiar psychology of Paula's letter.

I thought I knew women. I thought I knew everyone of their little idiosyncrasies. I thought I knew not only what they were thinking but the way they would work out any given proposition, but I confess I am stamped with this.

That letter is a hummer. I know you will agree with me there. Think of it Syd, a former sweetheart writes to the husband of the woman for whom she was thrown down and pleads that he will not, in the future, give his wife any excuse for being unhappy!

Great Scotland, if that is not a situation for a French farce or an American tragedy, whichever way you look at it, then I am a boob.

I can really see nothing harmful when a woman is away from her husband, if he takes his secretary out for a dinner.

Yes, you've guessed it. It was Sally Atherton, and I'll bet anything you want to wager that if she wasn't such a striking looking woman no one would have thought anything about it. I'll also be willing to take a few side bets that Paula Perler would have no scruples about my going to dinner with a girl, if she were the girl.

I do not believe, either that it will make Leslie unhappy when she finds that I have been dining many times with her good friend, Sally Atherton, while she was away. Of course, I shall tell her. I know if I do not do this Sally will. She is the frankest and most open-minded woman I have ever known.

Leslie is not a jealous woman. On the contrary, she has proved her great love for me as well as her great understanding of men by forgiving me little Jack and taking him into her heart.

Why, do you know, Sydney, that I believe that Leslie loves that boy better than she does me.

I am not at all afraid of what Leslie will think or say about this matter, but I was much interested in what Paula said and what she probably thinks. That is the reason I am sending her letter to you.

It is a modern viewpoint, isn't it? My mother had the idea that if a woman had once "fallen," as she used to call it, she could never be trusted again. Nowadays we find the theory turned around. Paula has proved that she can arise above her early indiscretions, but she thinks that I am not to be trusted ever again.

FRANCE PREPARES WITH AIRSHIPS FOR NEXT WAR

By Milton Bronner NEA Service Writer

London, June 16.—It is nearly midnight and in the warm moonlight air of Paris at its most beautiful you are walking along on your way to your hotel. Suddenly ahead of you, way up in the air, you see what seems to be three stars—a green one, a reddish one and a whitish one.

They are too high up and too many for the right to be lights on the Eiffel tower and, besides—they are moving. You are sure of it. It can't be an optical delusion. And then, after a time of eye-strain, the midnight mystery is revealed.

They are the lights of a giant airship silently moving over sleeping Paris. This French airship is not silvery in glint and outline. Instead, it has a smoky brown look even in the brilliant night. Its commander and crew are making one of their regular practice trips. In some similar manner they could float, a sinister menace, over some other sleeping city.

In this way France perfects her air service—the greatest and most efficient in the world. In this way France makes ready for the next war—which they fear is closer than war in America dream.

There is something besides the summer weather which is heating up the little new state of Finland. The Finns, jealous of their newly-won liberty from the Russian yoke, and, nevertheless, fearing the powerful claws of that same yoke, are very much upon their guard.

And now their army threatens to be all shot to pieces, not by bullets, but by internal jealousies, rivalries and politics.

The other day 800 officers sent in their resignations because of their dissatisfaction with the command-in-chief and the general staff. Another grievance is that many of the superior posts are held by men who were trained in the old days in the Russian Army and had posts in that army.

The younger men think the army ought to be very largely handled by officers who have no Russian traditions at all, but who owe all their training to their own Finland.

Holland during the war was often accused of being pro-German, but there is nothing at all pro-German in Dutch fears that their big neighbor may be casting covetous eyes at their rich colonies.

The Dutch, of course, know that the former allied powers would not allow Germany to grab the immensely wealthy and valuable Dutch East Indies by main force. What the Dutch fear is peaceful penetration by means of all kinds of big concessions. In that way they figure that some day they might wake up and find the main benefit of their colonies going to Germany.

So at the opening of the Dutch Peoples Council, Dr. Fock, governor general of the East Indies, went out of his way to kill that bogey. He said there was no intention to give permanent positions to concessionaires in the Dutch East Indies, nor to grant rights over huge areas.

Cooperation would be welcomed where the development of Dutch colonies insured first of all to the benefit of the Dutch nation.

A CIGAR SANDWICH

Antwerp, June 16.—Hermi Enfi showed a delicate taste in the proprietor of an Antwerp cafe and then went to jail. He ordered a ham sandwich and two cigars, and put the cigars in the sandwich. But in this way he attracted such attention to himself that he couldn't walk out without paying, as he tried to do. The police took him to jail where he was punished on his ham and sausage sandwich.

JAMESTOWN IS WINNER HERE IN GOOD GAME

N. P. Team Defeats Bismarck Independents, 4 to 2, at Local Baseball Park

Local baseball fans saw a good game of independent baseball Sunday afternoon here when the Jamestown Northern Pacific team defeated the Bismarck Independents, 4 to 2. It was a close game throughout. Jamestown won with four hits, while the locals with nine hits were unable to score more than twice. Sorlien, on the mound for Bismarck, pitched fine ball, allowing but four hits. He struck out eight Jamestown batters, gave three bases on balls and handled seven fielding chances faultlessly. Christensen was the star hitter for the locals, making three hits and also stealing two bases, one of them being Jamestown's home plate. Ted Greenfield, Bismarck star, thrilled the crowd with a circus one hand catch of Poseley's long fly to left field.

Two fast double plays by Jamestown helped keep down Bismarck's chances to score.

Billy Evans Says

If Lee Fohl continues the Boston Red Sox in the first division for a month or so longer, critics will be referring to him as the "Houdini of baseball."

Bequeathed a tail end ball club, badly lacking in reserve strength, Fohl has created much excitement after the first two months of play by having his despised Red Sox out in front.

But why the "Houdini" title?

It is impossible to make a major league ball club over in a year, although Quinn and Fohl, the directing heads at Boston, have made a pretty good job of it.

Three years is considered the average time to rebuild a major league club. Connie Mack has been at the trick since 1914 and hasn't yet accomplished his goal.

With limited strength in various departments of play, a manager is called upon to make the best possible use of available material.

That is just what Fohl is doing. Hence the title the "Houdini" of baseball.

The major league manager lays himself open to criticism every time he makes a strategic move. The second ones invariably prove that he "hooded" one. So far Fohl is batting high in the league of strategy.

With his sensational rookie shortstop Dudley Lewis and injured Fohl had no understudy. That was problem number two.

In Shanks, Ezzel and Clarke he had three third basemen, all of whom had played second, but none of the trio were familiar with the intricacies of shortstop.

Ezzel, a fine fielding third sacker, was tried at short. In his first game he had four errors.

Then Fohl experimented with Shanks, who filled in very well.

At third base he has been using his trio of aspirants for the job, with Lee having recovered from his injuries.

Clarke, a left handed hitter, plays third with a right handed pitcher for the opposition. Either Shanks or Ezzel, right handers, draw the job against a southpaw. Fohl seeks to get the very best offense possible rather than worrying about defense.

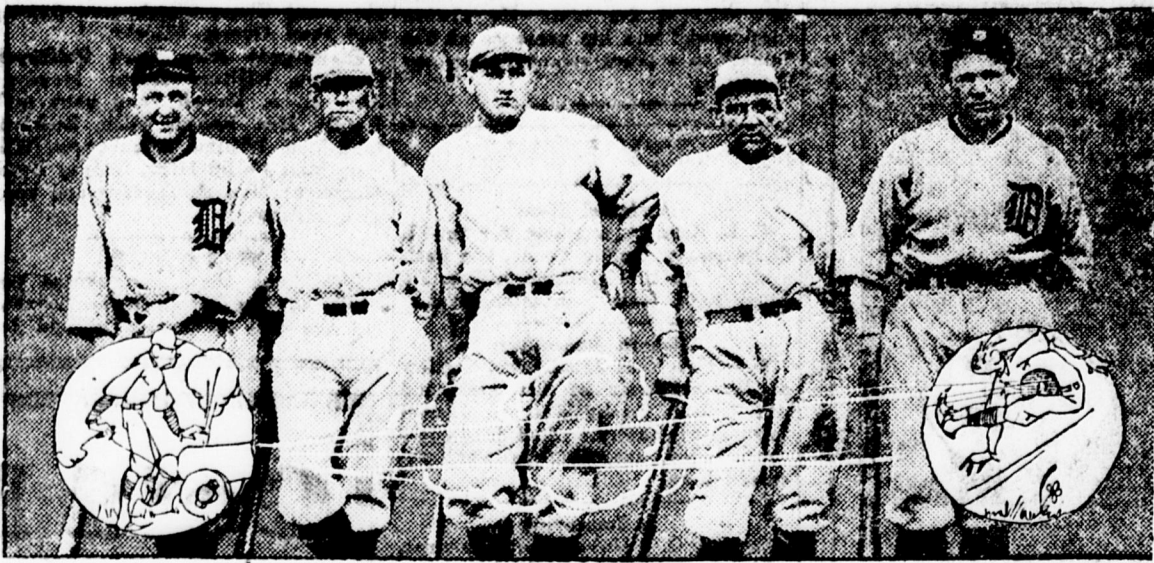

Relative to his outfield and pitching, Fohl is constantly called upon to juggle his lineup to meet situations.

Often Fohl takes Ike Boone, great hitter, out of the lineup in the ninth inning and sends in John Collins. Boone is fast learning the fielding tricks. John Collins is a master, particularly of a sun field. When enjoying a slight lead late in the game, Fohl seeks to hold it by strengthening his defense.

Unquestionably much of the success of the Red Sox must be credited to Fohl's skillful handling of his pitchers. He seems to scent the proper time to make a change.

Fohl is deserving of much credit for the early success of the Boston Club, regardless of where it finishes. He has the courage of his convictions, very essential to the success of a manager.

THE BLUE BLOODS OF BINGLEVILLE

FROM LEFT TO RIGHT, COBBE, COLLINS, BOONE, HARRIS, HEILMANN

When the Red Sox go against the Tigers mighty clouters decorate the box score. Of the ten leading swatters in the American League, five of them are members of these two teams. Recently they posed together, the five of them; namely, Cobb and Heilmann of the Tigers; Boone, Harris and Shano Collins—no kin to Eddie—of the Red Sox. You see them here.

GIANTS TAKE LEAD AGAIN

Win From Cincinnati, While Chicago Is Idle

Chicago, June 16.—The New York Giants regained the lead in the National League yesterday by defeating Cincinnati, 4 to 1, while the Chicago Cubs were idle. Carl Mays made his appearance in the Polo Grounds, on the mound for Cincinnati, for the first time since the 1922 world series, and was driven from the box by the Giants in the sixth inning. McQuillen was touched for ten hits but was tight in the pinches.

"Dutch" Routhier pitched the Brooklynites to a 4 to 3 victory over St. Louis in the only other National League contest.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians routed Bob Shawkey, and defeated the New York Yankees, 10 to 3. Babe Ruth went hitless.

The Chicago White Sox beat the Washington Senators, 6 to 4, fighting an uphill battle. The Detroit Tigers collected 21 hits in defeating Boston 10 to 4. Each Detroit player got at least one safety, while Manager Cobb hit safely five times out of six at bat. In his last time up he smashed the ball to deep center, but was robbed of a hit by Flagstad, who made a startling one-handed catch.

The St. Louis Browns defeated Philadelphia, 9 to 8, in 10 innings.

proposed schedule and discontinuing this proceeding without prejudice."

Railroads operating lines on which North Dakota lignite coal is carried issued the proposed increased schedule of rates on November 6, 1923, to take effect on December 6, 1923. The proposed schedules were suspended both by the state commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission. Hearings were ordered, being held both in South Dakota and in North Dakota.

Lignite coal operators, joined by official representatives of the states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota entered protests against the proposed increases on the ground that they would destroy the lignite industry, and the fight was carried to Congress, where a resolution was introduced for an investigation to determine if the railroads were forced to publish the proposed increases by eastern interests in order to increase the sale of eastern coal at the expense of lignite.

Operators and public officials, as well as civic bodies, also made a fight against the rates on the ground that it is necessary for the upbuilding of the Northwest and for safety in time of national fuel crisis, to have the lignite mines in operation.

The state commission's decision, a victory for the lignite operators may be followed by court action by the carriers.

The railroads contended that the rates were similar to those held confiscatory by the United States Supreme Court in 1911, and that they were too low as compared to other coal rates.

The Northwestern Coal Dock Operators Association, operating the Duluth and Superior dock coal companies, joined the railroads in protesting the low rates discriminate against sales of their coal, while the lignite operators charged one of the motives of the proposed higher rates was to favor the sale of eastern coal through dock companies.

In the last few years the lignite coal industry has made a rapid growth and has extended its sales into Minnesota and South Dakota.

Other Rates Low

President Millhollan of the state commission, writing the decision said with regard to lignite coal rates elsewhere:

"A number of exhibits and considerable testimony were offered in evidence by the protestants (the operators) with respect to the lignite rates in Texas. Witness Smart in his exhibit 45 gives a history of the Texas lignite rates and testified that the North Dakota lignite rates should not exceed the Texas scales. The Texas rates, both single line and joint line, are in some instances slightly higher and in some instances slightly lower than the present North Dakota rates. The lignite rates in Texas are considerably lower than the bituminous rates as shown on page 9 of exhibit 45, the Texas railroad commission has no record of any formal complaints of discrimination because of this."

The Texas situation lends strength to the protestants position that lignite should be accorded lower rates than bituminous coal."

The decision points out that the Montana railroad commission declined to adopt the North Dakota schedule of lignite rates for that state on the ground that they were confiscatory, under a court decision. In reviewing evidence which the decision states shows coal rates at many places in the Northwest lower than the lignite rates and in other places lower, the railroad commission dismisses the comparison on the ground that the rates apparently were made on the theory of what "the traffic will bear."

BILLY AND MA IN TRIM AGAIN!

Billy and Ma Sunday are getting ready to hit the road again. Both are feeling as fit as ever, after a several-week sojourn at a sanitarium in Rochester, Minn. One can see that by their latest picture taken on their arrival in Chicago. After a brief rest, they will resume evangelistic work.

common knowledge, but it is equally true that other great changes have occurred since 1911. The record shows, for example, that the carriers have constructed lines tapping lignite fields which were not in operation in 1911, and that the production of lignite has not only increased but that the average haul has increased substantially. Furthermore, the rates have been subjected to several increases and one reduction of 10 percent since the decision of the Supreme Court. We are not ready to concede, therefore, that because a rate was confiscatory several years ago, it is confiscatory today, in the absence of a showing that conditions are substantially similar. We endorse the statement of the Interstate Commerce Commission in its decision in Coxe Bros. & Company vs. Lehigh Valley R. Co., 3 I. C. C. 460—that there is no unbinding rule by which to determine what common carriers may reasonably charge for their services, but the reasonable rate must be ascertained from the facts of the particular case. To be reasonable, rates must be just, both to the parties immediately interested and to the public. Conceding that counsel correctly indicates the object of railroad traffic to be the profits derived from it, the lower compensation of the road cannot be less than will enable it to render the service; otherwise the freight will not and cannot be carried. The highest must not be more than the shipper can afford to pay; otherwise the freight will not be shipped. Reasonable rates are within these minimum and maximum limits, and must be determined upon the circumstances of each particular case. To this we would add that facts and circumstances surrounding the operations at the time of the inquiry should be given great consideration."

years shows that this reputation is well deserved. The average number of horses for that period has been almost five hundred. Clydesdales have been in the lead with an average of eighty-five, Percherons a close second with seventy-three, with Belgians, Hackneys, Standard Breds and Thoroughbreds in lesser numbers. The Heavy Draught teams and Agricultural show, often ten and twelve teams in a class for pairs, and six and eight in the four and six horse classes.

In Beef Cattle the three breeds, Herefords and Aberdeen Angus usually have nearly equal numbers, about one hundred each, the Shorthorns having a slight lead.

Holsteins lead the Dairy breeds with an average of one hundred and twenty-eight, altho Ayrshires and Jerseys are following well, having ninety-five and seventy-five respectively in 1923.

Sheep have averaged almost four hundred entirely of the mutton breeds, the leaders being Southdowns, Shropshires and Leicesters.

The Swine entry keeps around the three hundred mark, the Bacon breeds, Yorkshires, Berkshires and Tamworths being the favorites.

On with the Hunt!

The world is full of hunters running down facts, capturing facts, taming facts, making facts work for them—and for you. Edison setting traps for voices . . . Marconi stabbing at the sky . . .

You, too, are hunting facts. Theories won't light your home, burn in your furnace, tick off time for you, clothe you, feed you, grow in your garden, carry you to work.

Facts will. You are hunting facts when you read the advertisements. Facts about products, what they are, their worth, how long, how willingly they will slave for you.

When you buy, you want to buy facts—certainties of satisfaction.

Advertisements contain no vague theories or dreams. In their frankness is nothing to confuse. They give you facts. They give you your best ammunition for getting hold of more facts.

Use them. Read them every day.

SPRING WHEAT ACREAGE LESS, YIELD BETTER

Condition of Wheat Crop on June 1 Is Placed at 84 Per Cent of a Normal

MORE OATS ARE SOWN

Great Increase in Acreage—
Changes in Planting in North Dakota Told

North Dakota farmers have decreased spring wheat acreage by 826,000 acres and increased oats acreage 163,000 acres according to the June estimates released by J. C. Diamond, of Grand Forks, statistician for the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Today the smaller wheat acreage, however, promises a better turnout than last year, according to the report which gives the crop a June 1 condition of 84 per cent of a normal and forecasts a production of 67,460,000 bushels compared with the December estimate of 58,660,000 bushels for the 1923 crop. Forecast of the oats crop based on a June 1 condition of 83 per cent of a normal is placed by the report at 59,259,000 bushels compared with 54,924,000 in 1923, while the barley crop is forecast at 25,600,000 bushels compared with 23,818,000 in 1923.

June 1 condition of the rye crop improved over that of a month ago, being placed by the report at 85 per cent of a normal and forecasting a production of 11,167,000 bushels compared with 10,940,000 bushels in 1923 compared with the 5 year (1918-1922) average production, the June forecasts for spring wheat and rye indicate smaller than average production, and for oats and barley larger than average production. Durum wheat as a percentage of total spring wheat acreage is placed by the report at 35 per cent or 2,603,000 acres in 1923, while the 1924 bread wheat acreage is estimated to be 4,633,000 acres compared with 5,122,000 acres in 1923 and 5,181,000 in 1922. The report follows:

Acreage Changes
"A reduction of ten per cent in acreage of spring wheat in North Dakota is indicated by the June 1 survey of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics, which finds part of this decrease to be taken up by an increase of 15 per cent in oats acreage and 12 per cent in barley acreage, comparison in all cases being with acreage of these crops harvested for grain in 1923. The preliminary estimate of spring wheat acreage is thus placed at 7,436,000 acres, oats at 2,746,000 acres and barley at 1,524,000 acres. As a percentage of all spring wheat acreage, durum wheat is estimated to comprise 35 per cent of the total compared with 38 per cent last year and 42 per cent in 1922."

Condition of N. D. Crops
"Weather Bureau records indicate the month just passed to have been the coldest May in the past 20 years. Killing frosts prevailed throughout the greater part of the month, which with a low percentage of possible saturation have retarded all vegetable growth about two weeks compared with what could normally be expected on June 1. Spring wheat, oats and barley reflect these conditions in a very short top growth, but on the other hand are very well rooted. June 1 condition of spring wheat is placed at 84 per cent of a normal compared with 89 a year ago and 89 the 10 year average for June 1. Oats condition of June 1 is placed at 83 per cent of a normal compared with 88 a year ago and the 10 year average of 92. June 1 condition of barley is placed at 84 per cent of a normal compared with 90 a year ago and the 10 year average of 90."

PLAN TO ASK EXTENSION OF N. P. RAILROAD

St. Yates, N. D., June 16.—Farmers and business men this side of the river are cooperating with the Missouri in asking that the Northern Pacific Railroad company grant them a hearing at Fort Yates sometime in the near future when they may urge the completion of the railroad from Cannon Ball to Fort Yates.

The proposition of laying the rails on the grade south from Cannon Ball was recently revived by the farmers living across the river from Fort Yates. They claim that nearly 400,000 bushels of grain is raised annually across the river in territory which would be tributary to Fort Yates if Fort Yates was on a railroad. More and more grain is being raised on this side of the river; but, as yet, the amount is small compared to the amount which would be raised should the railroad come to Fort Yates. It is safe to say that with a railroad here, Fort Yates, in a very few years would rank as one of the largest primary shipping points west of the Missouri.

In addition to the large amount of produce which would be shipped out of Fort Yates should the road be completed from Cannon Ball, few towns the size of Fort Yates ship in the amount of merchandise each year. More than 3,000 tons of merchandise, goods and fuel are annually hauled to Fort Yates.

Finds Winter Rye Stand Good

Farmers in McHenry, Wells, Pierce, Renville, Sheridan and Ward counties have the best stand of winter rye in years, according to C. R. Kositsky, who returned from a trip to those counties, yesterday. In places, he said, rye is three feet high and is headed out. The crop, he says, is assured.

He found more corn planted than ever before, J. H. Crain, a farmer

WHEN DISSENTERS WERE ASSAILED

"Get up or get out!" That was the ultimatum other delegates hurled at the Wisconsin "rebels" in the G. O. P. convention when Governor Blaine and his little group of LaFollette supporters refused to rise and join in the cheering for the party's new platform. The LaFollette men remained in their seats, only smiling at the jeers, taunts and boos coming from all sides. Only when the band played the Star-Spangled Banner did they stand up.

Living north of Granville, McHenry county, alone having 700 acres of corn. He said that crop prospects in the counties visited are the best in years.

LEADERS START ON 'BIG PUSH' FOR N. D. VOTES

Last Full Week of Primary
Campaign in the State Is Opened Today

BOTH SIDES ARE BUSY

Real Republican Campaign
Managers Urge Full Vote
Go To Polls

The last full week of the state's biennial campaign began today, with orators for the Real Republican and Nonpartisan League forces in various parts of the state, and candidates for county office busy button-holing the voters.

The state campaign, which began to live up last week, is swinging into full speed this week, with the promise that by the time election day rolls around much of the apparent lethargy on the part of the voters will be well dissipated.

Predictions generally are lacking, because of the silence on the part of the voters. Governor Nestos will continue his speaking tour until the night before election. A. G. Sorlie, league candidate, will take the stump, having recovered pretty much from injuries in an automobile accident, and L. J. Moe of Valley City, third candidate for the Republican nomination, is not expected to deliver speeches.

There appears little excitement in the candidacy of Dr. L. S. Platou and Halvor Halvorsen for the Democratic nomination for Governor. Democratic organization leaders are taking no part in this contest, they say.

Asks Voters Get Busy
W. H. Stutsman, campaign manager of the Real Republican organization, in a statement today declared that "after five weeks of preparatory work at headquarters, we can finally say that the campaign is now in full swing." He declared that "the battle is not won until every voter is taken to the polls and his vote deposited in the ballot box."

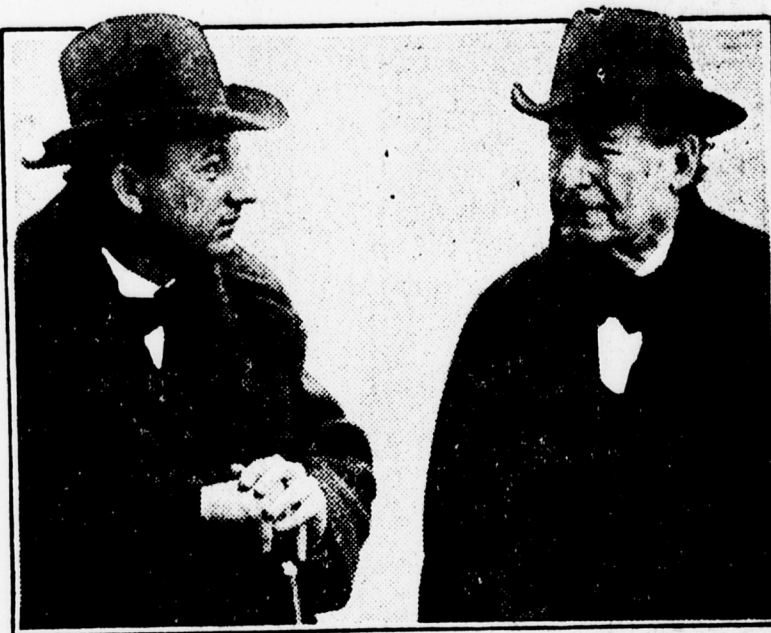

"The issues of this campaign are clear and concise and submit to the voters and taxpayers of this state desire to revert to the days of Townley, Lemke, Roylance and Walter Thomas Mills, and to all the political and economic disturbances that these names imply, with their financial losses, increased tax burdens and wasteful expenditure of the people's money, or do they prefer to 'carry on' with a business administration pledged to an economic administration of the laws and of the finances of the state; pledged to give the Grand Forks Mill and Elevator a full, fair and honest trial, but on the other hand pledged to resist all efforts to foist state owned industries and other socialistic ventures upon the state?"

FRAZIER COMES HERE
Senator Lynn J. Frazier will speak in Bismarck next Friday, and plans are being made by the Nonpartisans for this meeting. A. G. Sorlie, league candidate for governor, also will appear.

The League forces have issued a "1924 Blue Book" with campaign material, in which it says that the purpose of it is to show the lack of good faith by the Nestos administration's conduct of the state department business and the industries. It particularly attacks the taxation laws, administration of the Guaranty Fund Commission and the Bank of North Dakota.

There are seven national military or other parks under the jurisdiction of the secretary of war.

NEW OVERLAND COUPE SUCCESS

Designed Particularly For Salesmen, Doctors, Small Families

Having in mind the particular requirements of the city and traveling salesman, the doctor, the small family and the woman in the home who wants a small car for her own personal use, Willys-Overland announces the production of its new Business Coupe, on its popular Overland chassis, to sell at $650, f. o. b. Toledo, O.

"We believe that this new car is the last word in convenience, roominess and all-around driving comfort," is the comment of W. E. Laehr of the Laehr Motor Sales Co., Willys-Overland distributor, on the factory's announcement.

"The new car is equipped with doors of extra width, 31 1/2 inches across the opening, thus providing for easy entrance and exit on either side. The wide straight seat gives ample room for two large people and will accommodate three in a pinch."

"The body is built of exceptionally heavy metal, sturdily reinforced and unusual pains are taken with the finishing operations, fourteen being reported to insure the lasting finish."

"The interior of the body is finished in durable, long grain Spanish upholstery.

"The design of this car renders available more leg and elbow room than in any other coupe of its class. Overland's price class. Inside width of the car is only 3-16 of an inch less than four feet. The seat cushion is 4 1/2 inches wide. There are more than 15 inches between steering wheel and back cushion."

"A roomy rear deck provides ample room for samples and luggage. A hinged cover is provided with a lock and is protected against dust and leaks."

"In making the announcement of the car to the dealer organization President Willys has emphasized the fact that it is particularly designed for sales and professional men. But we also believe that the car is going to be a boon to women motorists."

"Its short wheel base simplifies the parking problem. Ease of operation because of large steering knuckles and bearings, makes it an easy car to handle in all sorts of traffic. Economy of operation results in a minimum upkeep cost."

"Patented Triplex Spring suspension gives big car riding ease because of the 136-inch spring base made possible with this type of spring. This is a great factor to the man or woman who spends a great part of his or her time in a car each day, as the added relaxation while driving renders the driver more fit for the work in hand between trips."

"Nowadays with the male members of the family requiring the use of the car during the day, there is a definite need for a second car in a good many homes, a car that can be used for shopping and visiting by the women folks of the home. The new Coupe is ideally adapted for this purpose. Ventilating windshield, Dura window regulators, rear window curtains are little touches that will appeal either to masculine or feminine tastes.

"To cap the climax this new Willys-Overland product is powered by the bigger, new Overland engine which has astonished motoring circles by its ability to conquer the steepest grades and to plow through axle deep sand and mud in a series of the most remarkable demonstrations held by Willys-Overland dealers from Coast to Coast."
